... but first a word from your coordinator

As this final issue of the year went to press, we blew out the candle commemorating our first year of existence with the wish that our second year will bring us to new heights of achievement.

In putting together these four quarterly Journals we have increased our own knowledge, not only about Jewish genealogy, but of postal rates, printing costs, computer idiosyncrasies, copyrights and an endless number of other subjects involved in bringing you this publication. We crawled into existence last January, and close the year having brought you a total of 236 pages of detailed vital information, research instructions, first-hand reports, indexes of thousands of Jewish names from Kielce and Radom gubernias, translations of important published works, and papers and tracts written especially for our members and subscribers.

The Kielce-Radom SIG Journal has been selected to appear in many highly regarded libraries and research centers throughout the world, attesting to its acceptance as an extremely useful tool for genealogists and historians studying our region of Poland.

Here is a list of some of these institutions:

Bar Ilan Univ., Israel	Brandeis Univ.
Columbus Jewish Hist. Soc.	Cornell Univ.
Harvard College	Holocaust Center of No. Calif.
JHS of Stamford	Jewish Public Library, Montreal
Kielzer Benev. Soc. of NY	LDS Fam. History Library, Salt Lake City
Library of Congress	Spetrus Institute of Jewish Studies
Univ. of Denver	Univ. of Pennsylvania
Simon Wiesenthal Center	State Library of Victoria, Australia
Jewish National and Hebrew Univ. Library, Israel	Yad Vashem, Israel ... and many Jewish Genealogical Societies

This issue again contains innovations, including an interview with the director of the Polish State Archives in Radom containing important information about researching those archives, two articles remembering the towns of Ozarow and Lagow, a research tract about anomalies in Polish records, additional Jewish surnames provided by Alexander Beider, and 25 pages of vital extracts from LDS microfilm records of Opatow and Przytyk, plus news and notes from our members..

For the first time you will find our Family Finder of surnames being researched by K-R SIG members, together with the towns they were from, and the names and addresses of the researchers.

Remember, the K-R SIG is a contributory organization that exists primarily through the sharing of research and contributions made by its members. There is much work to be done. We need your help. Contact us.

Finally, a reminder: It is time to renew your membership in the K-R SIG in order to continue receiving the Journal for another year. All 1997 subscriptions end with this issue. We are enclosing a renewal order form with this issue, and suggest you return it as quickly as possible to avoid a small increase that goes into effect on December 1, 1997.

GEOGRAPHY

Geographic Setting Of Ozarow

Ozarow is located in the southeast of Poland, 15 kilometres from the Vistula. It is about eighty kilometres from Kielce and Radom; to the northeast lies the city of Radom, and 200 kilometres to the north is Warsaw, the capital. The region includes wooded and cultivated terrain, and picturesque small hills that extend to the mountain "Swietokrzyska", the Holy Cross.

The region has a continental climate. In summer the days are clear and sunny, and the nights cool. Thunderstorms and lightening often precede short rainfalls and the rainbows that herald good weather. The temperature ranges between 18 degrees and 35 degrees Celsius.

With autumn and the festival of Succoth come the rains. During this period people lay in provisions for the winter. Winter comes in December. The days are much shorter and the cold is at its fiercest, often reaching minus twenty-five degrees. The Vistula freezes over and at certain spots the horses and their sleds were able cross to with all of the weight of the cargo they carried. The snow and cold would make your teeth chatter.

The traditional carts were transformed into horse-drawn sleds with jingling bells to trace their passage. The favourite amusement of the children was to fly down from the top of Zawiechost Road or that of the narrow road leading to the station in their little sleighs. They would also go skating on skates they fashioned for themselves.

In spring the snow covering the roofs would melt, giving rise to cascades of water; green returned to the fields and the gardens would bud anew.

Central Poland was one of the regions in the country where until the Second World War the Jewish population was the most implanted. It represented on average between a half and two thirds of the local population, except in the big cities.

Ozarow itself is surrounded by other towns and villages of varying size within a radius of around twenty kilometres, like Ostrowiec-Swietokrzyski, Cmielow, Opatow, Sandomierz, Zawiechost and Tarlow. It is one of the crossroads of central Poland and the north-south and east-west bus routes. Five kilometres to the south is Jasice, the railway station. Close by Ozarow there were many hamlets with tiny Jewish communities, like Stroz, Sakhalin, Karsy, Sobow, Lasocin, Przybyslawice, Wojciechowice and Wyszmontow. In these places, quarries were worked for stone for roads and houses or to crush into lime. Elsewhere were brickworks, a lemonade factory and sawmills.

Ozarow was not one of the prosperous villages. We would get our fruit and vegetables directly from the farmers and we ate a lot of potatoes. Many families could afford to eat meat only once a week.

Most of the dwellings were old, fragile and comfortless. Many, especially at the outskirts of the village, were no more than little wood cabins. To protect them from the cold, their exteriors would be covered with a thick layer of dead leaves gathered from the forest. There were double windows on the houses but in spite of this protection, the frost remained on the panes until spring. For heat we would use oakwood from the forests of the region or coal from Silesia.

HISTORY

The beginning

It is generally acknowledged that the name of the town is derived from that of the Polish nobleman Jozef Ozarowski who received a royal grant of the territory in 1568. We can get a glimmer of the birth of the Jewish community of Ozarow, thanks to an ancient chronicle which was kept by a Hungarian student, Martin Ksambor. The archives of the church also allow us to have a glimpse of the relations between Catholics and Jews. These documents shed some light on the life of the Jewish community of Ozarow from the 17th century until the liquidation of the ghetto in 1942, when the cemetery was transformed into an execution site.

The chronicle of Martin Ksambor

This young traveller, part student, part vagabond, indicates that the Jewish community of Ozarow appeared at the beginning of the 17th century. It is of course impossible to determine the exact date when the first Jews arrived in the village.

In 1616 Martin Ksambor noted that the majority of the inhabitants were Jewish: "One Saturday, we made a stop in Ozarow, where all of the villagers were at rest in observance of their religion."

Ozarow in the 17th and 18th centuries

It is only in the second half of the 17th century that the presence of an organized Jewish community in Ozarow can be confirmed. That period saw a massive influx of Jews, who benefiting from the relative tolerance of the local Calvinist lords, were able to practice their religion freely. By the beginning of the 17th century, the Jews were unquestionably the most important group in the vicinity. In one of the oldest documents of the Ozarow church, dated 1728, one can read that the "Jewish non-believers possess 90 houses, apart from the synagogue, and they have the upper hand in commerce."

Certain documents indicate that at the beginning of the eighteenth century, the village contained a synagogue, a cemetery and a ritual bath. When he visited in 1748, the Cardinal of Zaluski remarked that "the whole population is Jewish."

From the "head tax" which the Jews had to pay, we learn that in 1787 there were 68 Jewish households, comprising 193 persons: 104 men and 89 women. Among the men there were one rabbi, one cap-maker, one butcher, one hair-dresser, three jewellers, one tailor, two beadles, several teachers and one beggar.

From then, on the organized Jewish community of Ozarow took in the Jews from 36 different neighbouring populations. Mention is made of a "mixed" marriage between a Catholic and a Jew. Another noteworthy fact: On October 21, 1797, the priest Franciszek Dutomski expressly asked Ozarow landholders to no longer sell land adjacent to the church to Jews in order to keep them from building their homes there.

Ozarow in the 19th century

Following the Napoleonic wars, in the years 1817-18, the Jews comprised almost half the population of Ozarow. In that period, one could count 20 stone houses and 126 of wood. The mayor noted that the Jews were, above all, merchants or tavern keepers. In 1827 they numbered 761 out of a total population of 967 inhabitants.

An analysis of the tithes paid the synagogue (assessed in proportion to each member's income) permits us to conclude that they were poor. In Ozarow - as in the entire district of Radom - around ten percent of the Jewish population was entirely dependent on the organized community. The few well-off Jews contributed around half of the latter's entire budget. They often lived in the surrounding countryside. So when the authorities gave the order to build a new administrative building beside the cemetery, they could not gather the necessary funds.

Similarly, no one was eager to keep up the support of the Ozarow rabbi. Taking the community's word for it: "We cannot find a candidate for the post of rabbi. There is no one competent either in our town or in neighbouring towns. We approached the superior talmudic school of Warsaw, but because of the meagre salary we are offering, our request drew no response. We have also been forced to appeal to the rabbis of the region."

In 1860, Ozarow had a synagogue with 40 benches and 2 prayer houses, each with 36 benches. The Jewish cemetery had its appointed caretaker, Joseph Freiberger -- a former pupil of the Jewish school--who ran his own business for a long time before accepting this volunteer post at the age of 54.

In 1863, the community subscribed to a newspaper, Yutrzenko Morgenstern printed in Polish and in Yiddish, edited by the Jewish patriot Daniel Neufeld and sold at the price of 4 rubles and 2 kopeks. During that period the Jewish population of Ozarow comprised 1,162 inhabitants (598 men and 564 women) and represented 67% of the total population. Most of them were merchants (cloth, wood, wheat, leather) and craftsmen. One fact remains indisputable: in the years 1850-65 the Jewish population remained in the majority in Ozarow.

Ozarow in the 20th century

During the First World War Ozarow was under Russian occupation. In 1915, a Russian colonel demanded that its Jews give him 3,000 rubles. If not, he threatened to burn down the town. The size of the sum was so great that the Jews declared they were unable to pay it. The Russians then deported all the Jews of Ozarow 15 kilometres beyond the Vistula toward Annopol (formerly Rahow). The journey took place on foot or in carts, each person carrying a small bundle.

When the men, women, the aged and the children came back eight days later, they found the village in ashes. Almost all of the buildings, including the synagogue, had been looted, then razed. Was this the enforcement of blackmail or the implementation of a scorched earth strategy before the advancing Austrian army?

Between the two wars, the Jewish population increased significantly. In 1921, Ozarow had 3,456 inhabitants, of whom 2,258 declared themselves Jewish (about 65%). Ten years later, in 1931, the community had its cemetery, its synagogue, its five prayer houses and its rabbi and his assistant. In 1939, Ozarow had 4,284 Jewish inhabitants. This population doubled during the years of the ghetto. In October 1942, more than 8,000 Jews were deported.

The Jewish Cemetery

The present cemetery in Ozarow has been preserved. It already existed in the 17th century and it was maintained until 1942.

In his study of Jewish cemeteries, the Polish historian Adam Penkalla devotes a chapter to the Ozarow cemetery. He emphasizes that the use of Hebrew letters on the gravestones shows the high cultural level of the Jewish community and its weak degree of "Polonization".

The Jewish cemetery is located in the southern part of town, opposite the Catholic cemetery and near the road out to Opatow, Zawiechost and Lublin. Its southern wall is intact, but only traces remain of the western and northern walls. Long ago, there was an eastern wall that separated the cemetery from the fields. Sadly neglected, the cemetery is now threatened with ruin. There remain only about a hundred tombstones, on some of which only the names of the deceased can be made out.

At the southern edge, there are remains of foundations. These belonged to the administration building and to the crypt where the rabbis were buried (Ohel). Near this spot, we find the gravestone of Raizel, the daughter of El'yezer Shalom, the rabbi of Piotrkow and Siedlce. Many trees shade the cemetery. Many were planted before the war, others in 1964 when the town decided to transform the place into a municipal park.

The oldest tombstones in existence today go back to the 1880s, and the most recent to the end of the 1930s. They are made of stone from the quarries of Coney, five kilometres from Ozarow. It was Chil Birenbaum who artfully engraved the stones between the two wars, as occasionally did also Ephraim and his sons, who came from Ostrowiec for the purpose.

All of the stones are aligned and face northward. In compliance with the traditional proscription, there is no representation of the human face. You can, however, find tree branches, animals and ritual objects. The dates of death refer only to the Hebraic calendar, and only fathers' first names, never family names, are mentioned.

At the end of the nineteenth century, the question of inscriptions in languages other than Hebrew arose among the Jewish communities of central Poland. In Ozarow, as in Lodz, the Orthodox way prevailed--Hebrew was used to the exclusion of any other language.

The inscriptions recall the qualities of the deceased and reproduce biblical verses. In the years 1891-95, you can find chiselled vases adorned with garlands. Later the style tended to be more austere. For men, the most common engravings were a lion, a tree or arrays of books; for women, a chandelier, candlesticks or an outstretched hand holding coins, a symbol of generosity.

The Jewish funerary art of Ozarow gives us a glimpse of how the Jewish community lived at the end of the last century. The cemetery bears a precious memory and therefore deserves to be considered a historic monument.

Gravestone in the Ozarow Cemetery

Hillel Adler was born in Ozarow, Poland on July 25, 1920 into a family of masons and bakers. Shortly after his birth, his father died, leaving his mother Rachel as the sole support of Hillel and his older brother Shimon, together with four other children born of her husband's earlier marriage to her own sister. The family was poor to the point where having enough to eat was a source of constant anxiety. In July 1942, he was abruptly separated from his family and deported with other Ozarow youth. Interned successively at the Skarzysko (Poland), Buchenwald (Germany) and Terezinstadt (Czechoslovakia) camps, he survived the war only to learn that his entire family had been decimated. He decided to go to Paris where two of his half-brothers had settled in the 1930's. There he found Raca (Regine) Grynberg, who also had been deported from Ozarow. They married in November 1947 and had a daughter, Renée. In Paris Hillel worked as a tailor, then as a hotelier. He led a quiet, honest and respectable life. But all through his years in France, he could not stop thinking of the past which haunted him. That is why when he retired, he resolved to bear witness for future generations. It was thus that this book came to life. Hillel Adler died in Paris on January 25, 1996.

William Fraiberg was born in Montreal. He is a lawyer by profession and is interested in amateur theatre, fitness, reading and music. He is co-author (with Armand L.C. de Mestral) of "Language Guarantees and the Power to Amend the Canadian Constitution", (1966-67), 12 McGill Law Journal, No. 4, pp. 502-19; Author of paper entitled "International Commercial Arbitration vs. Court Proceedings" published in "A Canadian Perspective on the Court of Arbitration of the International Chamber of Commerce", a publication of the Canadian Council of the International Chamber of Commerce, Montreal, 1982.

From the Kielce Archives Catalog: "The Files of the State Administration at the Województwo (Gubernyal) and County Level until 1918"

From Chapter II: The Records of General Administration, in Archiwum Państwowe w Kielcach I jego Oddziały [State Archives in Kielce and its Branches] (Wydawnictwo Naukowe PWN: Warszawa-Łódź, 1993), pages 48-50. By Ramona Guldron. Translated from the Polish by Paweł Brunon Dorman. Edited by Warren Blatt and Jonathan Shea.

After the third partition of Poland (in 1795) the territory of the pre-partition Cracow and Sandomierz województwo (voivodships = provinces) were occupied by Austria, and became part of West Galicia. This territory was divided to six cyrkuł (districts): Końskie, Radom, Sandomierz, Kielce, Kraków and Olkusz. The number of districts was decreased to three in 1803. Olkusz district and part of Kraków district were joined to form Kraków district; Końskie district, Kielce district and the northern part of Kraków district were joined to form Kielce district; and Radom district and Sandomierz district were joined to form Radom district. Each cyrkuł (district) was divided into okręg (regions). The seats of the regions were the following towns: in Kraków district - Kraków, Olkusz, Żarnowiec; in Kielce district - Kielce, Stopnica, Opoczno; in Radom district - Radom, Opatów, Staszów.

The administrative authority belonged to starostwo (county office). The cyrkuł (district) offices were their subsidiaries. Until 1804 the Gubernium in Cracow and later the Gubernium in Lvov were dependent on the starostwo. The district offices were engaged in statistical affairs and supervision of population movements, in military affairs, in political affairs, in economic affairs and in taxation, financial matters.

The files of the district offices were in fragments as the bound books, which were continued by the next administrative authorities.

As a consequence of the treaty in Schönbrunn (in 1809), West Galicia became a part of the Duchy of Warsaw (Księstwo Warszawskie). Beginning in 1810, the territorial divisions into departments and powiat (administrative districts) were introduced in this area. The Department of Kraków was composed of the powiaty (administrative districts) of: Hebdów, Jędrzejów, Kraków, Krzeszowice, Lelów, Miechów, Olkusz, Pilica, Szydłów, Stopnica and Skalbmierz. Whereas the composition of Department of Sandomierz included the powiaty: Kielce, Końskie, Koziene, Opatów, Opoczno, Radom, Sandomierz, Solec, Staszów, and Szydłowiec. Somewhat later, the territory of Kraków department was increased by the powiaty of Pilica, Lelów and a part of the powiat of Olkusz.

In each department the administrative authority had a prefect, department committee and committee of legal-debatable affairs, according to the constitutional law of 1807. The files of the prefects of the Kraków and Sandomierz departments are only partially intact.

After the liquidation of the Duchy of Warsaw, the structure of the authorities, as well as administrative partition on the territory of the Kingdom of Poland (Królestwo Polskie), did not change for some length of time. Only in January 1816, the State Council introduced the new administrative partition. The Kingdom was divided into województwa (voivodships = provinces), and the voivodships into obwód (circuits) and rural and municipal gmina (lesser administrative districts). In each obwód, there were from two to three powiat (counties).

Kraków województwo was divided to the following obwody: Kielce, with Kielce and Jędrzejów powiaty; Miechów, with Miechów, Skalbmierz and Kraków (minus the city of Kraków) powiaty; Olkusz, with Olkusz, Pilica, and Lelów powiaty; and Stopnica, with Szydłów and Stopnica powiaty.

Sandomierz województwo, with its capital in Radom, had the following obwody: Sandomierz, with Sandomierz and Staszów powiaty; Opatów, with Opatów and Solec powiaty; Radom, with Radom and Kozienice powiaty; and Opoczno, with Końskie, Opoczno and Szydłowiec powiaty.

In each województwo, a Komisja Wojewódzka (Voivodship Board) was created, with a president, commissioners, general secretary, associate judges and apprentices.

The Voivodship Board had the duty to do among other things: executing orders of government boards, overseeing internal order and to care for the personal safety of inhabitants, to care for public and private property and to care for the development of education.

By an ukase (order) of March 7, 1837, the województwa were transformed into gubernyas, and the voivodship boards were transformed to gubernyal (provincial) administrations, and presidents of boards were changed to civilian governors.

In June 1841, Kraków gubernya was transformed into Kielce gubernya, and the Kraków Provincial Administration (Rząd Gubernialny Krakowski) changed its name to Kielce Provincial Administration (Rząd Gubernialny Kielecki). In 1842 the obwody were transformed into powiaty, and the old powiaty were changed into judicial regions. Circuit (obwód) commissioners were changed to directors of administrative districts (powiat). Beginning in January 1845, Sandomierz and Kielce gubernyas were joined to form Radom gubernya, with its capital in Radom. Radom gubernya contained eight powiaty: Kielce, Miechów, Olkusz, Opatów, Opoczno, Radom, Sandomierz and Stopnica. Functions of the former Sandomierz and Kielce gubernyal administrations were replaced by functions of the Radom Gubernyal Administration (Rząd Gubernialny Radomski). Affairs which began at liquidated offices were continued in the same books.

During the January Uprising [1863], the division into województwa was reinstated — thus creating Sandomierz and Kraków. Kielce and Radom, as voivodship towns, were subordinated directly to directors of voivodships. The voivodships were divided into powiaty and okręgi.

After the defeat of the uprising, the Kingdom of Poland was divided to gubernyas and administrative districts. On the strength of the treaty of December 1866 regarding provincial and administrative district management, Radom gubernya was divided into Kielce gubernya and Radom gubernya. Kielce gubernya contained the following powiaty: Kielce, Jędrzejów, Miechów, Olkusz, Pińczów, Stopnica and Włoszczowa. Radom gubernya contained these powiaty: Ilża, Końskie, Kozienice, Opatów, Opoczno, Radom and Sandomierz. The treaty kept two levels of administrative authorities. Provincial administration duties were accorded to governors and provincial government units, whereas county administrative duties were the responsibility of the organs of county government.

The governor had a wide range of powers. The Provincial office was directly subordinated to him. The governor managed provincial government and he took care of order and safety in province, as well as controlled administrative officials and institutions which were under his management.

The provincial level of government was responsible for — among other things — town management, military-police, architecture and roads, the clergy, medical service, insurance. In the provincial main office were: director, officials, staff officer for special affairs, reserve officer of ground-guard. Whereas in the gubernyal government were: vice-governor, advisers and associates of departments, engineer (architect), treasurer, archivist, inspectors, journalist and department officials.

The county offices (powiaty) managed the affairs of the counties and were responsible for the entire range of political, social and economic affairs before the governor and gubernyal government.

Mayors of district towns (burmistrz miast powiatowych) and chief officers of communes (wójtowie gmin) were under the county office in the hierarchy.

In 1914, with the outbreak of the World War I, Kielce gubernya and Radom gubernya fell under the control of the Austro-Hungarian army, and management of this territory was performed by Austrian military authorities. In May 1915 two governorships were created: Kielce and Piotrków. The Piotrków governorship was composed of the obwód of: Końskie, Kozienice, Opoczno, Piotrków, Radom, Sandomierz and Wierzbica. Whereas Kielce governorship contained the obwód of: Dąbrowa, Jędrzejów, Kielce, Olkusz, Pińczów, Stopnica (Busk), and Włoszczowa. From September 1, 1915, the two governorships were joined to one General Governorship, initially with capital located in Kielce, and from October moved to Lublin. The highest authority in the administrative district was a commander, who was responsible for all military, administrative, economic and judicial affairs of the administrative district. Auxiliary offices were headquarters of stage stations and police-stations. In the headquarters were: political officials, an engineer, a doctor, a veterinary surgeon, a supervisor, divisions of agriculture and forestry officials and financial officials.

In 1918, the Regency Council introduced the division into counties in the territories regained from Austrian occupation, and the organs of administration became the county government agencies. □

Anomalies in the Polish Vital Records

by Lauren B. Eisenberg Davis

Templates<sup>1</sup> for extraction of information from the Napoleonic format vital event registrations are very helpful. These templates identify common phrases that are used in birth, marriage and death records, enabling researchers to extract crucial pieces of information, such as name, parents, ages, occupations and locations, for their ancestors. Some records, however, vary from the set patterns we expect to see. Customized wording may describe an interesting family situation. Additionally, there may be discrepancies between the index entry and the record itself that require further study for clarification.

Patronymics or Surnames?

Be careful with "surnames." The name suffixes '-ów', '-owna', and '-owa' are not part of the name itself, but rather a descriptive ending meaning "from the family of", "daughter of", or "wife of," respectively. Names ending in '-wicz' are particularly tricky. This suffix means "son of", and many early uses of this type of construct are patronymics (father's name) and not a formal surname. However, many families adopted patronymics as their formal surnames as well, for example Berkowicz, Abramowicz and such. Women, also, were often not listed by surname, but by patronymic. You will be able to discern many of these as you become acquainted with the families in a town's records.

Without studying the complete population of a town, this situation can become ambiguous. Looking at isolated Chęciny records, one can find:

- Birth of a child (1821 #47) to the wife of Dyda Manelowicz
- Birth of a child (1811 #42) to the wife of Josef Manelowicz
- Birth of a child (1818 #55) to Faygla Manelów

- Birth of a child (1819 #8) to Szajndla Manelów

There was a huge Manela (surname) clan in Chęciny. However, of the above, only Josef and Szajndla were surnamed Manela. Their patronymics were Josef Szlamowicz and Szajndla Lukowna. Dyda and Faygla were children of a man whose given name was Manela. The family took the surname Gnat in the Russian surname mandate of 1821. No relationship between the Manela and Gnat families as been established at this time. Note: The patronymic/surname ambiguity is more of a problem in the pre-surname period.

Declensions Affect Names

Polish names have different endings depending on how they are used (see the article "How to Pronounce Your Polish Towns and Family Names" in issue I:3). This can disguise the actual name you are seeking.

Warren Blatt was a teenager when he began tracing his roots in Chęciny. He uncovered an 1838 marriage record for his great-great-great-grandparents, who were identified as Zysman Mydlo and Liba Leywina. Warren successfully traced the Mydlo family, but was able to turn up nothing for the surname Leywina.

In 1996, I extracted Chęciny 1841 marriages, and Warren made an interesting discovery: the marriage of Liba Leywina Mydlo's sister. The surname was listed as Leywe. The parents' names matched those of Liba's: Wolf and Sura z Szymon. By this time, we had already learned that the suffix -ina was sometimes used as a feminine declension of a name ending in a vowel. It was the first record Warren had found for the family of his great-great-great-grandmother . . . but not the last. . . the result was over 100 new documents, extending that branch back to the 18th century.

Always, always, look at all names of the same root, not just a specific version of a name you are seeking.

Declarants Other Than the Father

The declarant on a record was the person who appeared at the vital records office to report the event. Most often, in the case of 19th century Polish birth records, the declarant was the father. The father, as declarant, was usually identified as such implicitly. The record typically states that <declarant> appeared to report a birth, and later states that a child was born to his wife. Sometimes in the signature block, the man will be explicitly identified as ojciec or oyca (father).

Occasionally, the father was not the declarant on a birth record. Sometimes this is easy to discern from the wording. Perhaps you will notice that the baby's surname or patronymic does not match the declarant. The declarant may be identified as the uncle, grandfather, or widowed mother. The father may be listed later in the text of the record, as is sometimes seen in the case where the father is a soldier, or otherwise out of town. In these cases, the mother's name might not be preceded by the phrase "z Małżonki jego" indicating that she is the wife of the declarant. However at other times, the record reads exactly as a record where the father is the declarant, even though this is erroneous. Consider the following birth record translation:

Krasnystaw 1833 Birth #1

It happened in the town of Krasnystaw, on the fourteenth day of March, in the year eighteen thirty, at eleven o'clock before noon. Appeared the Jewess Sura Rywa Cukierman, widow living in Krasnystaw, forty years in age, and in the presence of the witnesses, Zelik Honigman, blacharz<sup>2</sup>, thirty years in age, and Josef Fliswaser, szkolarz, forty five years in age, both living in Krasnystaw, showed to us a male child born in Krasnystaw on the twelfth of March of the current year, at six o'clock in the morning, of his wife Sura Rywa Cukierman, forty years in age, to whom at circumcision was given the names Herszek Lipa. This document was read to the declarant and witnesses and was signed by the mother and the witnesses Zelik Honigman and Josef Fliswaser.

<sup>2</sup> Please refer to "Occupation Definitions" (I 1) for descriptions of this and other occupations in the vital event registrations in this article

Obviously Sura Rywa Cukierman was not her own wife. The clerks simply failed to customize the usual wording of the record to fit the situation. Note that Cukierman was Sura Rywa's maiden name. The baby's true surname (Goldman) did not appear in the record or index at all. Other records were necessary to unravel this situation.

When your extractions are complete, you might observe, in your analysis, that a particular set of family records looks peculiar: the father of one baby is different from that of the babies born both prior and subsequent to that baby. For example, the following two births were registered in Chęciny:

Chęciny 1848 Birth #99

It happened in the town of Chęciny, on the first/thirteenth<sup>3</sup> day of August, in the year eighteen forty eight, at two o'clock in the afternoon. Appeared the Jew Manela Rozenwald, twenty two years in age, living in Chęciny, along with the witnesses, the Jews Ire Mąka, sixty two years in age, szkolnik, and Moske Hesies, forty six years in age, szpitalnik, living in Chęciny, and they showed to us a female child, born in Chęciny on the first day of August of the current year at seven o'clock in the morning, of his wife named Rajzla z Jakierów, nineteen years in age, to whom was given the name Szandla. This document was read to the father and the witnesses and was signed by:

Chęciny 1848 Birth #100

It happened in the town of Chęciny, on the first/thirteenth day of August, in the year eighteen forty eight, at three o'clock in the afternoon. Appeared the Jew Manela Rozenwald, twenty two years in age, pachciarz living in Chęciny, along with the witnesses, the Jews Ire Mąka, sixty two years in age, szkolnik, <sup>3</sup> There are often two dates listed on Polish records Julian / Gregorian days. There is usually a 12-day gap between the two dates. The Julian calendar was used by the Russians, the Gregorian by the Poles. Today we use the Gregorian.

and Moske Hesies, forty six years in age, szpitalnik, living in Chęciny, and they showed to us a male child, born in Chęciny on the first day of August of the current year at four o'clock in the afternoon, of his wife named Nicha z Rothensztajnów, twenty years in age, to whom was given the name Icyk Boruch. This document was read to the father and the witnesses and was signed by:

Manella Rozenwald was a busy fellow. He appears, from the wording of the records, to have had two concurrent wives. In actuality, only Birth #100 was his child. Birth #99 is the birth of his brother Izrael Moszek's baby, determined from prior knowledge of Israel Moszek's wife's name. Apparently Manella went to the civil registration office to register both his son and his niece at the same time, saving his brother a trip. Notice that the only difference in the wording of the two records is in the signature block. On the registration of his son, Manella is explicitly identified as ojciec. The registration of his niece simply lists him by name. This is an error on the clerk's part.

The following three records, from the Izbica registry, are examples of documents that explicitly state that the declarant is not the father.

Izbica 1862 Birth Record #22

It happened in the town of Izbica on the twenty fifth day of March in the year eighteen sixty two at nine o'clock in the morning. Appeared the Jew Szloma Warman, piekarz forty four years in age living in the town of Izbica, along with the witnesses the Jews Szoel Tuchman, forty two years in age, and Dawid Szyfman, twenty eight years in age, both living in the town of Izbica, and they showed to us a male child, born in Izbica on the nineteenth day of March of the current year at six o'clock in the morning, son of the widow named Frajdla Wajnryb Warman, thirty two years in age, of the father Nuta Warman, deceased, to whom at circumcision was given the name Nuta Chil. This document was read to the grandfather and the witnesses and was signed by the grandfather and the witnesses.

The underlined phrase above reads as follows in the original Polish: synowej jego wdowa Frajdla z Wajnrybow Warman lat trzydzieci dwa mający, oraz z oyca Nuty Warmana obecnie nieżywego. The key words are wdowa (widow) and nieżywego [nieżywy] (deceased). The final phrase implies that Szloma Warman, the declarant, was the paternal grandfather. Note that either Szloma's or Frajdla's age was inaccurate, or the deceased father, Nuta Warman, was much younger than his wife.

Izbica 1861 Birth Record #45

It happened in the town of Izbica on the fifteenth day of November in the year eighteen sixty one at eleven o'clock in the morning. Appeared the Jewess Ruchla Ester Pregier Helfman, wyrobnica, wife of Chaim Helfman, żołnierz, living in the town of Izbica, along with the witnesses the Jews Moszek Szyfer, szpekulant thirty six year in age, and Jankiel Kintzler, krawiec thirty three years in age, both living in the town of Izbica, and they showed to us a female child born in the town of Krasnobrod on the ninth day of April in the year eighteen fifty eight, at three o'clock in the afternoon, thirty six years in age, to whom in religious ceremony was given the name Perla...

The key phrase here reads: Starozakonna Ruchla Ester z Pregierow Helfman, wyrobnica, zona Chaima Helfman żołnierza. Note that this is a delayed registration, with the father a soldier and the baby born in another town.

Izbica 1862 Birth Record #35

It happened in the town of Izbica on the fourth/sixteenth day of June in the year eighteen sixty two at nine o'clock in the morning. Appeared the Jew Lejzer Birboim, krawiec fifty one years in age living in the town of Izbica, along with the witnesses Berek Nudel handlarz mąka forty two years in age, Jew living in the town of Izbica, and the Jew Szaia Adler, krawiec, forty seven years in age living in the town of Izbica, announcing on the twenty seventh day of May/eighth of June of the current year was born at nine o'clock in the morning a son to Jankiel Majer Birboim and his wife Gitla Mesmen, a male child to whom at circumcision was given the name Biniomin. Presented to the grandfather, this document was read to the witnesses and signed by those who could write.

39. Please accept my personal best regards to your Excellency and your family. Your Excellency's kind words will always remain in my heart as a reminder of the kind and thoughtful attitude of your Government towards our unfortunate compatriots in the Far East. I hope that you will be able to make a personal visit to the region as soon as possible. I am sure that the Chinese Government would be most pleased to receive you.

1827 Chęciny Marriage Index

Column headings are: Record Number, Surname, Given Name, Town of Residence, Age in Years, Names of Parents: Father/Mother

Here the declarant is identified as Lejzer Birboim, and later the father is explicitly identified as Majer Birboim. The concluding phrase uses the word dziadek (grandfather) rather than stawaiqemu (declarant).

Errors on the Index

I spent a great deal of my time tracing the enormous Manela family of Chęciny. The 1848 death index listed record 232 as the death of Ruchla Laia Manelina (feminine version of Manela). I scrolled the film to record 232. See Figure 1 for both the index and the record itself. I extracted the child's age (8 years) and parents' names for further use. During the analysis of the data I'd collected at the library, I noticed something very odd in this family. I not only had birth and death records for Ruchla Laia Manela to these same parents, but I also had a marriage record many years later. Realizing that I had made an error, I went back to the library and viewed the film again. Upon re-examination of the death record, I observed that I had neglected to verify the name of the decedent on the record itself. While the index identified her as Ruchla Laia, the registration itself identified her as Ciejwa, a known sister of Ruchla Laia. The indexing clerk erroneously entered the name of the still-living sister on the death index.

Index Containing More Facts than the Record

Consider the groom section of Chęciny 1827 marriage registration #19:

...the Jew Janas Herszkowiczów, bachelor, bakalarz, born in the town of Ostrowiec, Sandomierz województwo, twenty one years in age, parents deceased, living in the town of Ostrowiec.

No parents' names for the groom are mentioned explicitly anywhere in the record. The only possible reference is the patronymic/surname Herszkowicz<sup>4</sup>. However, looking at the 1827 marriage index (see Figure 2), the groom's parents are identified as Moszek and Sura. How is this possible?

- Personal acquaintance: the indexing clerk knew the family. This is unlikely in this case, since the bride was local, but the groom was from another town in the gubernia, Ostrowiec.
- A second set of records was maintained for all towns. Perhaps the groom's parents were inadvertently omitted in one set, but included in the other set. The index may have been created from the other set of records.

Consequently, all components of a record must be examined in order to fully grasp the details of the situation. Multiple records for the same family group often help clarify discrepancies presented by a single record.

Help Needed

The Russian Era Indexing of Poland Project (REIPP) has received a set of vital record indices from our region that are in need of data entry:

Polaniec: 1826 - 1877

Please contact Hadassah Lipsius, REIPP Transliteration and Data Entry Coordinator:

68-31 147th Street
Kew Gardens Hills, NY 11367

or via e-mail at: <Kesher@aol.com>.

<sup>4</sup> In fact, the identity of the groom is a rather confusing issue in this record. He is seemingly identified as Janas Herszkowicz, although later the record refers to him as Janas Herszkowicz Goldbaum Bakalarz, which appears in the position of an occupation (and in fact means teacher), is the surname under which this bride and groom registered the first several vital events for their children. They later began using the wife's maiden names Manela and Kwart

Memories of Lagov

by J.B. Salsberg

This article consists of excerpts from a series of columns that J.B. Salsberg wrote for the Canadian Jewish News about the town of Lagov (Łagów): "the small, typical Polish-Yiddish shtetl where I was born and where I spent the first 10 years of my life." Reprinted with permission of the Canadian Jewish News. Thanks to K-R SIG member Sid Orfus for his help on this piece. Note: Subheadings and glossary provided by the KR-SIG editors.

The town was neither prosperous nor renowned. The majority of the townsfolk were Jews and Yiddish was the prevailing tongue. Even non-Jews spoke or understood Yiddish. The town lived chiefly as a supply and service centre for the farming vicinity, that was almost predominantly non-Jewish. Jews were horse and cattle traders, tailors, shoemakers, carpenters, blacksmiths, bakers, grain dealers and shopkeepers.

There was, of course, a complete Jewish infrastructure to serve the 2,000 or so Jewish community. There was a rabbi, a dayan, shochtim, melamdim (teachers), a synagogue, a Beth Hamidrash and a couple of chassidim stiblech. Needless to say, it was a God-fearing community, completely embraced by strict Orthodoxical beliefs and practices and, like almost all our fellow Jews in Eastern Europe (especially those under tsarist rule), we groaned under the burdens of Galut and prayed for the speedy coming of the Messiah.

Education

Lagov had no yeshiva nor a community-wide Talmud Torah but there was no lack of the traditional, ultra-Orthodox type of Jewish education. To be sure, there was one small public school in town, but no Jewish boy (and only the rarest Jewish girl) went to that "goyishe" school. There were, instead, the required number of chedorim (cheder, singular) that provided the "traditional" Jewish education. These were privately run, one room, one teacher (melamed) schools that were housed in the small, cramped house of the melamed.

Each cheder catered to a given age of children. The elementary type (dardekeh) catered to the 4 to 6-year old boys. (No girls were included in the entire system.) The intermediary type taught Chumash and Rashi. The senior ones centred on Mishna and Gemarah (Talmud). One scholarly man taught a small group of older boys higher Talmudic studies, that included the classical commentaries as well as some halachic works.

One melamed, who had been to "America" (actually it was Toronto) conducted a cheder that emphasized the Prophets and that practiced "the American method" of morning and afternoon recess periods for his pupils. One man gave private lessons to girls - reading and writing Yiddish.

Secular subjects? They were left to the pupils to pick up somehow. . . . A number of young men "learned" by themselves every day in the "Besmedrish" while waiting, waiting, for a shidch or perhaps a journey to America. There were also the individual or group studies in the Besmedrish in the evenings.

The Sabbath

In Lagov, market day was every Thursday and the farmers from the immediate area brought their produce to town on that day and purchased their needs for the farms.

But on Friday afternoon everything began to grind to a standstill. A young Jewish orphan-lad had the exclusive right to pace up and down the town square and shout, as loudly as he could: "In bod arein!" which means, come to the steam bath!

His call was promptly answered. Lagover men, often with a growing son or two in tow, with rolled-up undershirts under their arms, would hasten towards the Jewish community's steam bath where the ritual baths (the mikvah) were also located.

Somewhat later, Lagover elders, with beards still wet from mikvah water, would hasten to put on their (sometimes shredded) Shabbes "capote" (long, satin outer garment) and hasten to the synagogue.

Ah, but Saturday afternoons, during summertime, were sheer delights for the Lagover Cheder boys!

The town was totally embraced in the arms of the "Sabbath Queen." Only rarely did one see a human being in the "mark," the market square. Jews were enjoying a Sabbath nap and grandmothers were reading the Biblical portion of the week from their "Tzene-Vereneh" which was a Yiddish translation of the weekly portion of the Bible.

We, the young "Cheder" boys, would gather in the homes of our respective teachers, to "learn" parts of the "Peirik" of the week. I was mesmerized by the Rebbe's adroitness in mixing vinegar and soda in a glass of water until it reached a stormy, foamy overflow, which he then drank to the last drop and which was followed by a loud and substantial belch . . .

A Visit

But where, you may want to know, does the tsar of all the Russians come into the life of Lagover Jewish boys? Here is how. I remember it well, though I must have been about 8 years of age when it happened.

One fine summer morning, when all the kids (boys, that is) were in their respective chedorim, someone called on the rebbe (melamed) and told him something and forthwith we, much to our joy, were dismissed and told that there would be no school that day. Outside we found all the other boys in the town square who were also liberated for the day.

At home we learned that according to the tsar, our type of schools were prohibited. (There were no others in all such towns.) A friendly policemen had tipped off someone that an inspector was expected that day to ascertain where "illegal" Jewish schools existed in Lagov. Hence the holiday.

But next morning everything returned to the accustomed routine - cheder all day and, during the winter months, in the evenings as well.

But a few months after the visit of the inspector a minor miracle happened in town. It turned out that the crown prince had been thrown from his horse, he was gravely ill and special prayers for his recovery were ordered, all the way from St. Petersburg (now Leningrad), for all schools and places of worship.

And, lo and behold, the tsar's police knew the location of each cheder in town. The children, led by their rebbes, were marched off to the synagogue, where the Jewish elders had already assembled. The cantor led us all in special prayer and in the singing of the special Hebrew prayer for royalty (this was printed in every prayer book) while the few policemen were standing in a saluting fashion right in the centre of the synagogue! It was a moment to remember.

Hardships

It would be wrong to idealize Jewish life in a shtetl like Lagov. It was galut, in every sense of that pain-conveying word.

The majority of all the tsar's subjects lived in poverty. Jews, too, were poor. The tsarist regime and sections of the Russian official church diverted the wrath of the deprived and poorly educated unto the Jewish minority, who were largely town dwellers and of another religion and culture.

Pogroms were either organized or abetted by one or another section of the tsar's establishment. Jews in the shtetlech managed to survive by turning inwardly for their spiritual, cultural and moral strength. They were Jewish fortresses of historic dimensions.

In my youth there were no pogroms in Lagov, but there was no feeling of security either. Often the manner in which the priest interpreted the Crucifixion to his parishioners had a direct result on the behaviour of the population towards the Jews.

There was also banditry and highway robbery. Occasionally frightful reports would reach us of a Jew being found maimed or killed in the countryside. One often heard the plaintive cry for and end to the galuth.

Yet Jewish life provided: laughter as well as tears; fear of the morrow and defiant determination to overcome; and both Tishe B'Avs (days of fasting and mourning) and Simchats Torah.

The Gubernator Arrives

When things seemed good, there was fear of the counter-reaction. That was the case when the tsar's Gubernator (governor of all Russian Poland) came on a rare, official visit to the off-the-beaten-track community of Lagov.

The Jews suggested to the Polish dignitaries that a joint reception be planned. But the Poles rejected the proposal and proceeded with preparations for an executive "Christian" welcome instead. Theirs, the "official" one, was to start at the approaching road to town.

What were the Jews to do? What would the gubernator think when he arrives and finds no Jews to receive him?

They decided to arrange their own Jewish reception for the royal visitor to take place after. A formal gate was constructed in the market square, not far from the synagogue, decorated with branches and flowers, as was the entrance to the synagogue. The entire Jewish community, in their Sabbath-best, huddled behind the little rabbi, who couldn't speak Russian, and the few elders at his side.

On a little table in front of the rabbi stood a shining metal tray on which was the traditional offering: bread, a knife, salt, a glass pitcher filled with cold water and an empty glass.

Lads rushed back and forth with reports of the happenings at the "Goyishe" reception at the entrance to town. Everyone became tense and worried when the report came that the governor had arrived, that he was listening to the welcoming speech and that he was tasting the bread down there, and that, heaven above, he was coming!

Finally, the gubernator stepped from his carriage, smiled, was pleased with the few words of greetings, ate some bread, drank some water and (gevalt!) he, himself, asked to be led to the shul, for the religious ceremony.

No one said it, but everyone thought it; what will the affronted non-Jews, who remained behind, at the entrance to the church, what will they say? Yes, and what may they do to punish us? (Oy, der goolis!)

The entire Jewish population followed the gubernator into the shul, in which every lamp and candle had been lit even though it was broad daylight. The chazan (cantor) led in the singing of the tsar's anthem while the gubernator, his aides and soldiers stood stiffly at attention. It was a thrilling spectacle. And, heaven protect us from all evil, only after he left the synagogue did he get into his carriage and was driven towards the church, where the resentful non-Jewish community waited for the governor and his official party to begin their church service.

Apparently the gubernator had been plainly displeased that the Jews were excluded at the Christian entrance. To make his displeasure obvious, he ordered his aide-de-camp, not to stop at the church but to be driven first to the waiting Jews.

Everyone agreed that the Lagover Jews did themselves proud on that occasion.

World War II

Only a brief few weeks before the outbreak of the Second World War, I was in Europe. I had been in Russia, where I met a number of key leaders of Soviet Jewry and discussed the problems and challenges that faced the large Jewish community there.

From the Soviet Union I traveled to Poland, the land of my birth, where a substantial number of my relatives; my maternal grandmother, as well as my paternal grandfather and many uncles, aunts and cousins still lived.

Because I had been an alderman in Toronto every young Jew in the two shtetlech (small towns) of my parents' birthplace, pleadingly insisted that I take them with me to Canada.

No explanation and no pleas were accepted by them. A few of the younger fellows of Rakov climbed into the wagon that had been hired to take me back to Lagov and refused to leave it. I must take them with me to Canada, they insisted.

It was a heart-breaking experience for me.

Visualize this tragic experience of mine. The wagon that was to take me moved forward slowly in Rakov. My paternal family and most of the Jewish townfolk followed behind me. But a couple of younger fellows had boarded that wagon and refused to leave; I must take them with me, they insisted.

We have reached the end of the town. The wagon halted for me but the boys refused to leave the wagon. Finally a few strong young men climbed on the wagon and literally threw them from the wagon.

The tragic scene broke my spirit completely. I began to cry at the pitiful sight of what took place. I was literally hoisted into the waiting wagon and we began to move forward. It was one of the most painful moments of my life.

What happened to all whom I left behind? All but two of my paternal family in Rakov perished, together with the rest of that long-existing, hard working, pious Jewish community at the bloody hands of the Nazis.

The two that survived, as we later learned, were a young man, distant relative, and the young daughter of my father's youngest brother, Velvel (Zev). Two out of an entire community...

At war's end the survivors of East European Jewry were gathered in the Jewish survivors camps in Germany and adjoining countries. The American (and Canadian) Hebrew Immigrant Associations, issued lists of the survivors that were carried daily in the Yiddish and Anglo-Jewish press and everybody - literally everybody - scanned these lists with fear and hope.

One day, not long after the end of the war, I visited my parents on Cecil Street in Toronto. As I approached our house I saw my father running and waving the Toronto daily Hebrew Journal to me. With an excitement I had never seen he shouted, "My brother Velvel's daughter survived and she is trying to reach us."

We both read the survivors list of that day. There it was: His youngest brother's daughter survived. She is in a survivors camp in Germany; is looking for an uncle, Abraham Salsberg in Toronto, she didn't have his address. We decided to send a telegram to her and, since I was about to engage in a tour of the survivors' camps, I will call on her and arrange her coming to us.

Well, about two weeks later we met in Germany; the only survivor of my father's once large family!

We finally got the Canadian government to issue a permit for her to join us in Canada.

Born in Łagów in 1902, J.B. Salsberg arrived in Toronto with his family at age 11. At 13, he left school to help support his family by working as a leather cutter in a purse factory. During the 1926 General Strike in England, he became interested in the labor movement and joined the Communist Party of Canada.

In 1938 J.B. became involved in politics and was elected a municipal alderman, a position he held till 1943. He was then elected to the Ontario State Legislature, a position he held for 12 years. In 1945, he was delegated by the Lagower Mutual Benefit Society in Toronto to return to Łagów and report on any Holocaust survivors and on conditions in the post-war shtetl.

During a visit to Russia in 1957, when he discussed Soviet anti-Jewish policies with Nikita Kruschev, he decided to leave the Communist Party. He was an ardent Zionist and always was in demand as a labor leader, politician, writer and communal worker. He wrote a weekly column for the Canadian Jewish News for many years.

A Conversation with the Radom Archives Director

by Lowell Ackerman

The following interview was conducted by Dr. Lowell Ackerman with Kazimierz Jaroszek, Director of the Polish State Archives in Radom (Archiwum Państwowe w Radomiu). Mr. Jaroszek has been involved as a government archivist for many years and has been working in the Polish State Archives in Radom since 1989. Since 1994 he is a Director of the archive. Both he and his staff were extremely courteous and helpful in exploring the holdings of the Radom Archive office. This interview was conducted with translation assistance provided by Krzysztof Malczewski.

ACKERMAN: Is it possible to obtain a published catalog of the holdings of the Radom archives?

JAROSZEK: Yes, we have recently completed such a guide as well as a separate inventory of archive fonds which were compiled as of June 30, 1995. A current listing of the Radom archives is being continually updated. **see footnote

A. There was a 1765/66 and 1790/91 Jewish census for some areas of Poland. Does such census exist for Radom?

J. No. I am not aware of any such census for this area. If it ever did exist, it might have been moved to Warsaw or Kielce, but I am unaware of any such documents. There are, however, other censuses that were not government mandated. In Radom, there is a list of donations made to Jewish schools by residents. There are also lists of military service, arranged by year, from 1867-1915. There is also a fond of military personnel who died and the family left behind. This was compiled to meet the needs of family members requiring financial assistance. There are also some listings to update the list of permanent residents on an annual basis, from 1867 to 1915. This was very important since all new residents needed to apply for legal resettlement from their place of previous residence to where they were actually living. The tenant registers provide much genealogical information on Radom residents, including date of birth, parents names, family members and occupation. There are also files from the Jewish public (grammar) schools that go up until 1939. After 1945, there are lists of Jews who returned to Radom after the war.

Kazimierz Jaroszek,
Director of the Polish
State Archives in Radom

A: Can the archives supply a complete list of towns whose vital records are located here?

J: Most of the archives' holdings are listed in the guides mentioned earlier. The holdings changed frequently as jurisdictional changes were made. In the 19th century, akts were assigned to the area in which they were generated. Each archive had its own scope of activity and the administrative borders were subject to change. For example, the records after 1876 for Ilza are stored in Radom, but records before 1876 are stored in Starachowice. Actually, the scope of activity for Radom increased greatly in 1976. According to binding law state archives take over metrical holdings as they become 100 years old. 1976 was specific since then new administration division of the country was introduced and new Radom province established. After 1826, civil records for Jewish communities were kept separately. Civil records were registered in the Jewish community and these regions didn't comply with the borders of the parishes. As the Jewish population increased, new communities were also created. Accordingly, the country was eventually split not only by Jewish communities recognized by the government, but also by the synagogues to which individual Jews belonged. Since Catholic churches originally kept track of civil records and the parishes didn't exactly overlap with Jewish communities, there could be discrepancies as to which records are located in which archives. Sebastian Piatkowski, one of the archivists here, has been working on a list of Jewish communities from the Radom area. A Russian directory was published in 1870 which listed communities from within the Radom/Kielce region. Cemetery listing might provide other information. Some renovation work has been done at the Jewish cemetery since 1990, but a lack of funds has mation. Some renovation work has been done at the Jewish cemetery since 1990, but a lack of funds has been a problem. The cemetery was devastated by the Nazis and the tombstones were used to pave the airport. Some of the tombstones have been recovered and renovated. An inventory of cemetery stones was partially done, but the location of those records are not known. They are not located at the archive.

- A. Other than metrical [vital] records, what documents might the archives possess that would be of particular genealogical value?
- J. The tenant registers are excellent sources of genealogical information and have not been microfilmed by the Mormons. There are actually three series of Tenant Registers, the oldest beginning in 1840. The newest series began at the end of the 19th century and ran until 1927. The purpose was to keep track of the permanent population of every religious denomination of Radom. This proved you were a Russian subject and was the basis for identity cards, passports, military service, etc. For example to be able to own a shop in Radom, you needed to be a Russian subject and your name needed to appear in the tenant register. Only town permanent residents appeared in these registers, not residents of smaller towns and villages. Each house was listed, followed by residents who had to list their date and place of birth, their parents names, their religion and their occupation. In the margins were often added additional information, such as when someone died, moved or was issued identification papers or a passport. Other documents that might provide genealogical information are wills, property deeds, school records, draft military records, passports, identification cards,

- A. Which records might contain photographs of our Jewish ancestors from Radom?
- J. For Jews living in Radom during the Second World War, German identity cards were created that often included a photograph. The originals are main-tained at the Radom archive and can be searched by an indexed alphabetical listing. These cards also contain birth information and parents' names. Also, the Bata factory in Radom kept work records for Jews that often included photographs. The factory was often a temporary workplace before Jews were deported to the concentration camps. Within our Radom Archives holdings there are some photos of famous rabbis from the area from the second half of the 19th century as well as those sent to Siberia around 1905 for involvement in rebellions following the Sino-Russian war. Some photos also exist from passport applications and identity cards from period 1923 - 1935. Sadly, there are also a collection of about 30,000 photos for which no names are attached. These records are considered of no archival value and, by law, should be destroyed.
- A. What recommendations do you have for international genealogists wishing to do research at the Radom archives?
- J. We enjoy visits to our archives by international genealogists and try to assist them as much as possible. For those wishing to write us about their ancestors, please remember that all requests for metrical records must first be filed with the State Archive Office in Warsaw (Naczelnna Dyrekcja Archiwów Państwowych, ul. Długa 6, skrytka pocztowa nr 1005, 00-950 Warszawa).

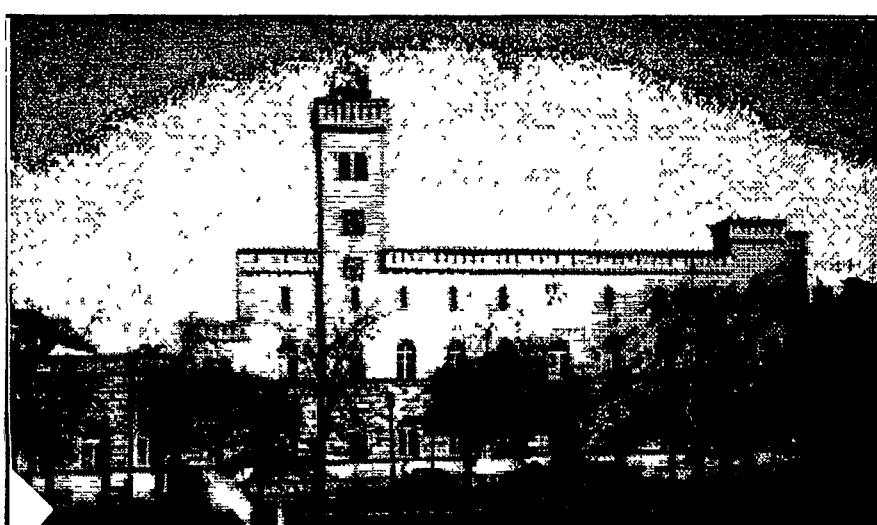

Only then are we permitted to do the research. All requests should be sent to this Warsaw office together with $30.00 to start the search. The only searches we can do without other authorization is the German identity cards, which can be done for a cost of $15.00. Send the request to: Polish State Archives, Radom, ul. Rynek 1, 26-600 Radom, Poland. When making any request for genealogical research, it is important to specify if you are interested only in direct ancestry (pedigree) or side branches (descendancy). Then, provide as much information as you can, at least to before 1920, including place of residence, name of parents, and specific years of birth, marriage or death. The archivists can really only search for specific records and provide photocopies; it is not possible for them to provide interpretation or construct family histories. This service would best be performed by a professional genealogist, not an archivist.

[Author's note: Mr. Jaroszek and his staff were wonderfully accommodating during my research trip to Radom. They are not only extremely knowledgeable about their region, but were quick to make suggestions on other documents they might have that would be of genealogical value. Although the staff is not fluent in English, this should not dissuade genealogists from visiting the Archives; they are extremely adept at determining your needs and providing the relevant material.]

Jewish Vital Records in the Radom Archives

by Warren Blatt

At the right is a list of the Jewish vital records listed in the Radom Archives' published inventory, Archiwum Państwowe w Radomiu, edited by Helena Kisiel (Warszawa: Naczelną Dyrekcja Archiwów Państwowych, 1996), page 95.

These records primarily cover the years 1826 through 1886. Only towns in Radom gubernia are included in this list. These towns were in Radom gubernia's five northern powiat: Radom, Ilża, Końskie, Kozienice and Opoczno. The Radom Archives also has Jewish vital records for a few other towns outside of our region (Grójec, Mogielnica, Nowe Miasto nad Pilicą, Warka), which are towns just north of the Pilica river, which were in Grójec powiat of Warszawa gubernia.

Note that the Radom Archives most likely has records beyond the dates specified here, extending through 1896. See "Vital Records in Poland - A Primer" in the Kielce-Radom SIG Journal, I:2.

Records through 1877 were microfilmed, and are available through the LDS. But marriage supplements ("allegata") were not microfilmed. See Kielce-Radom SIG Journal, I:1, pages 6-7, for the range of microfilms available for each town.

For comments on where earlier Jewish vital records for these towns might be, see the interview with the Radom archivist in this issue.

SURNAMES FROM EASTERN KIELCE GUBERNIA

Compiled by Alexander Beider

Listed below are surnames from the four eastern powiat (districts) of Kielce gubernia: Kielce, Jędrzejów, Pińczów and Stopnica. These are surnames extracted from the voter lists for the Gosudarstvennaya Duma (Russian parliament) of 1906, 1907 or 1912, along with the total number of voters bearing each surname; and surnames extracted from yizkor books.

All these names were transliterated into a standard contemporary Polish spelling, from either Russian (voter lists), or from Yiddish or Hebrew (yizkor books). All the letters in the names below should be read as in Polish. For example, we spell "Frydman" instead of more familiar English spelling of "Friedman", "Rozensztejn" instead of "Rosenstein", "Kac" instead of "Katz", etc.

Dr. Beider has graciously shared the sources of his research with the Kielce-Radom SIG. Data for the seven districts of Radom gubernia appeared in the first two issues of this journal; data for the three western districts of Kielce gubernia appeared in the previous issue.

Dr. Beider is offering a research service. He will return to you the complete entries for a surname from the original voter lists, at a cost of $21 per name per district. The voter lists contain the surname and given name of each voter. Patronymics (the father's given name) are present in most of these lists as well. Write to: Alexander Beider, 8 rue du Dauphiné, 91300 Massy, France. Make checks payable to "Avotaynu, Inc."

Notes and News

Books on Jews of Kielce and Radom

by Debra Braverman

There are some interesting books in Polish about the Jews of Kielce and Radom. Krzysztof Urbanski has written at least two. One is in the Holocaust Museum Library: Krzysztof Urbanski. Kieleccy Zydzi ([Kielce]: Wydane staraniem Pracowni Konserwacji Zabytków w Kielcach, [1992]). The Table of Contents is in English and there is a two page summary in English. There are also photos and a map.

The other one is called Spolecznosc Zydowska w Kielcach (Kielce: Muzeum Narodowe w Kielcach, 1989). There is no English summary, but a bibliography in the back, and 12 pages of photos including people (with their names). Both books have photos in the back and I believe the book in the Holocaust Museum has a map of Kielce. Another book of interest is by Adam Penkalla called Zydowskie Slady w Wojewodztwie Kieleckim i Radomskim [Jewish Traces in the Voivodships of Kielce and Radom] (Radom: Wydawn. Tramp, 1992). This book is a short history of the Jews in several dozen towns in Kielce and Radom with a map for each town showing the synagogue, cemetery, etc.

Also see the two books below – LBD.

- Krzysztof Urbanski, Rafal Blumenfeld. Slownik Historii Kieleckich Zydow (Kielce: Kieleckie Tow. Nauk., 1995).
- Zaglada Ludnosci Zydowskiej Kielce: 1939-1945 (Kielce: Kieleckie Tow. Nauk., 1994.)

Pre-Travel Log

by Mike Rosenzweig

It seems like I got in the middle of a battle over jurisdiction. I had written a letter to the Mayor of Chmielnik telling him that I planned to visit his town and the purposes of my visit. He responded with a warm letter in which he practically gave me the keys to the town. He also stated the offices of the local Archives would be open to me. I then received a letter from the Chmielnik USC telling me that while the mayor had the right to welcome me to the town, he had no right to give me permission to use the archives. In order to emphasize their position they routed the letter via the Polish Ambassador in Washington and the Consul General in Chicago. I finally received the letter by registered mail.

I sent another letter to the State Archives Offices in Warsaw specifically asking for permission to use the Chmielnik Archives. Who knows. Politics seem to be the same all over the world. They all like to have you jump through hoops.

However, there is a mayor in Chmielnik and his name is Jaroslaw Zatorski. His address is: Urzad Mienia i Gminy, 28-110 Chmielnik, Plac Koscielny 5. I have written to him and have received an answer so he does exist. There is a USC office in Chmielnik. I have a letter from them but it has no street address, just 28-110 Chmielnik as return address. The records there are from 1895 to 1941. Records prior to 1895 for Chmielnik are in Pińczów.

There is no "Chmielnik Archives," only a USC. The Archives has no jurisdiction over the USC. The USC keeps the local records for the town for the past 100 years. Prior records are maintained regionally at branches of the Polish State Archives. For further information, see the article "Vital Records in Poland – A Primer" (I:2). – WB/LBD.

Kromolów

by Alexander Beider

During my work on A Dictionary of Jewish Surnames from the Kingdom of Poland, I used gazetteers with the lists of towns/villages. There were two sources used: the 15-volume Słownik Geograficzny Królestwa Polskiego (the gazetteer of Eastern Europe with historical data, population figures and administrative subdivision for the end of the 19th century); 2-volumes Przewodnik Królestwa Polskiego that includes just lists of villages and gives the district center for each place (1900).

In the above sources Kromolów is mentioned as being in the Olkusz district.

However, in the Jewish Encyclopedia in Russia it is mentioned in both Będzin and Olkus district. To my mind, it was in the Będzin district of Piotrków guberniya for some length of time, and then it was administratively moved (along with its area) to the Olkusz district.

Look for a full article on using the "Słownik Geograficzny Królestwa Polskiego" in a future issue of the journal -- WB.

Kieltzer Benevolent Society

by Debra Braverman

The Kieltzer Benevolent Society is alive and well, both in New York and Israel. The NY branch meets kind of monthly. Yearly dues are $35. The president is Jacob Elkes (718-251-6937) and financial secretary is Bernie Schulman - 147-50 76th Road, Flushing NY 11367 (718-263-4328). The bulk of the membership (at least those I've met) are survivors. They really like when what they call the 2nd generation join. I am a member, as were my great grandparents and grandparents (skipped a generation with Mom and Dad). The burial plot is at Beth David in Nassau County and the society has a big (very big) map showing who's buried where. I don't really know anything about the Israeli branch, except that the two branches are in contact. The NY branch sponsors a trip to Israel every year and sponsored a trip to Kielce for the 50th anniversary commemoration of the 1946 pogrom last year.

Ostrowiec Cemetery

by Harry E. Stein

A volunteer in Poland mentioned that the reason so many headstones were on the ground, was that the townspeople brought the stones back to the cemetery after the war. The Nazis had laid them out has paving stones and stepping stones.

Toronto Kielce-Radom Landsmanshaft Shuls

by Sid Orfus

Stephen Speisman is currently the Director of the Canadian Jewish Congress Ontario Region Archives located in Toronto. He wrote a book published in 1979 called The Jews of Toronto - A History to 1937 (Toronto : McClelland and Stewart, c1979).

Unfortunately individual landsmanshaft shuls no longer exist. As his book recounts, when a small group of worshippers disagreed with the executive decisions of a congregation, they left and established a new shul of their own.

As time went by, these small shuls did not last very long, because of a lack of members. The circle turned fully and they eventually amalgamated with one another and formed congregations from larger regions e.g. "Hebrew Men of England" ; "Beth Jacob" - the Poilisher Shul; "Adath Israel" - the Roumanian Synagogue etc.

Proposal to Acquire Synagogue and Landsmanshaften Records

by Harry E. Stein

I am researching the Brochstain family of Ostrowiec Swietokrzyski, also known as Ostrovize. I have found nothing by viewing LDS film, although I did get some information by writing to the USC of the town. In researching immigration patterns , I found that many immigrants from Kielce & Random (including my father) went to Toronto, Canada. By reading the book, The Jews of Toronto - A History to 1937 (Toronto : McClelland and Stewart, c1979) by Steven A Speisman, I have found many Synagogues and Benefit Societies bearing names of towns found in Kielce and Random. Some of the shuls and benefit societies were: Anshei Ostrovitz, Anshei Kielce, Anshei Chmelnik, Anshei Stashov, Kielcer Society, Nova Radomsk Society, Ostrovitzer Society, Radomer Society, and the Staszower Society and others which appear to have a Kielce-Radom connection.

In the form of a suggestion, can we procure the records of these organizations and extract from those records? The site is closer, the records may be written in English, there may be members of our families still living in the Toronto area and area experts with whom we can research further. I for one would be willing to extract Ostrovitzer records if they were written in English.

We need help on these types of projects. We hope that our members, like Harry, will pitch in on procurement of documents and other materials that will be of help to us in our research - LBD.

Renewal time! Rejoin the Kielce-Radom SIG before the rates increase!

It's time to renew your membership for 1998. The first issue of the year is due in January. A $2.00 increase has been announced for next year, beginning on Dec. 1, 1997. We suggest you send in your renewal now to avoid the increase.

A renewal form is included with this issue, but if it's missing, send your dues in U.S. funds ($24, U.S. and Canada; $30, all others), made out to "KR SIG", to:

Gene Stern, Coordinator,
P.O. Box 520583,
Longwood, FL 32752.

After Dec. 1, dues will be $26 and $32, plus $6 for overseas airmail..

Toronto Organizations Related To Kielce And Radom Gubernias

by Lucy Schiffman Sadowski

I was able to obtain from an agency called Jewish Information Services a list of landsmanschaften currently active in Toronto. From this list, using the lists of districts and towns on your web-site, I have picked out those organizations which almost certainly are connected with Kielce and Radom immigrants and some others which are possible and even one or two which are probably related to other towns sounding a bit like towns in Kielce and Radom.

Someone at the Ontario Archives of the Canadian Jewish Congress told me that the list I obtained represents about half the original landsmanschaften in Toronto. They could not give me a list of all the originals but if there is a question about a specific one, contact:

Letter: LDS versus Polish State Archives

May I ask why you recommend that I work the LDS records (I am a volunteer librarian at our local FHC) rather than work through Polish archive?

Harry E. Stein
 <fromme@juno.com>

There are many reasons that it is preferable to conduct your research using LDS microfilms rather than submitting requests to the Polish State Archives:

- 1) The LDS is much less expensive. The cost of reserving the films is a few dollars. Archival research fees can add up fast. Consider the following: my MANELA family consists of over 1000 vital records from Chęciny and Kielce 1810-1884. At $15 per hour plus $10 for a photocopy of each registration, that is a painful price.
- 2) There is something special about making the discoveries yourself, a feeling of being part of it. As you watch the mysteries unravel, you get to know your families and their neighbors in a way that is impossible by just looking at a few selected records that you might receive from the archives.
- 3) Relying on other people to do your research puts you out of the loop. You are at the mercy of

THEIR judgement regarding what is and is not important to you. A surname search is not necessarily comprehensive. Will they scour all the records for years that are unindexed? If you tell them you are seeking EISENBERG, will they also send you all the AJZENBERGs? What about the BERGAJZENS? You will lose the opportunity to discover alternate surnames in your family.

Scrolling through the records yourself allows you to see the patterns and recognize things that are not indexed properly or are just anomalies. (See the article "Anomalies in the Polish Vital Records" in this issue of the journal). Sometimes the surname is NOT the identifying fact.

Also, instances arise where witness information is the only clue... but you won't have the archives reading all the witnesses looking for your people. (Look for an article on this in a future issue of the KRSIG Journal).

I never would have been able to properly trace my family without jumping into the records myself. There are too many bizarre situations that arise, and you have to be familiar enough with what you are looking for so it will jump out at you. -LBD

Geographic Subdivisions and Hierarchies

by Warren Blatt and Lauren B. Eisenberg Davis

Town/village names are often the hardest bits of information to extract from vital records, because they're unfamiliar (non-template) words. Don't bypass this information just because it's difficult; it is a very important fact to consider in your research. It will tell you where out-of-town brides and grooms came from. There may be references to towns where people were born or lived previously. Many towns and villages registered their vital events in other nearby towns. The town of registry is not always the town of residence. It's best to get a good map of the area, and cross-check unfamiliar names until you find a locality that looks like a match. Also note declensions of place names (i.e. Chęcinach -> Chęciny). See "How to Pronounce your Polish Towns and Family Names" (I:3).

Some more hints: the town name is often followed by the word "urodzin" (born) or "zamieszkały" (living), and is often preceded by one of the following place-type words:

- miasto = city
- mieście = town
- wsi (wieś) = village
- gmina = community or municipality
- okręgu = district/county
- powiat = parish or district
- obwód = district/county
- department = province
- gubernia = province
- województwa = province

Sample hierarchy of political jurisdictions in Sobków, as found in civil vital registrations:

- 1822: mieście->powiat->obwód->województwa
 1823: wsi->gmina->powiat->obwód->województwa
 1826: mieście->powiat->obwód->województwa
 1829: mieście->województwa
 1834: mieście->powiat->województwa
 1838: wsi->obwód->gubernia

In general (there are always exceptions):

- |               |  |
|---------------|--|
| 1795-1809:    | district was kreis   |
| 1809-1815:    | district was powiat, province was department                         |
| 1815-1837:    | district was obwód, subdistrict was powiat, province was województwa |
| 1837-1841:    | district was obwód, province was gubernia                            |
| 1841-1917:    | district was powiat, province was gubernia                           |
| 1918-present: | administrative districts are województwo                             |

Conclusion:

A województwa or gubernia or department was composed of obwód was composed of powiat was composed of gmina (in the case of villages, but not usually towns) was composed of mieście or miasto or wieś. It's impossible to translate political jurisdiction names precisely, i.e. "district" vs. "county", etc. Just accept the hierarchy. See the article on page 8 of this issue for more details.

Joint REIPP - Kielce-Radom SIG announcement

In the spirit of cooperation which exists in the Jewish genealogical movement, the Russian Era Indexing of Poland Project and the Kielce-Radom SIG are pleased to announce a significant joint project.

REIPP has agreed to release its full database of indices of Jewish vital records for towns in the Kielce-Radom gubernias to the Kielce-Radom SIG. K-R SIG members who perform vital record extractions on data sets that contain surnames will be advised to submit a set of index information for those extractions to REIPP.

As extracts are completed and published, the REIPP web-site and search engine will add a reference pointing to the K-R SIG Journal, volume number and issue, as the source of the extracts of the records of interest. The K-R SIG website has a link to REIPP as well.

This will dramatically increase the ability of researchers to pin-point possible records of interest and enable them to quickly confirm the validity of the records for their family history research.

At the same time, the K-R SIG will encourage its researchers to release to REIPP the index portion of all extracts published in the K-R SIG Journal.

Thus, Kielce-Radom researchers will be able to start their search with a printout of all possible matching records and then proceed to the appropriate K-R SIG Journal issue for the full extract of the record.

Both REIPP and the KR-SIG welcome volunteers for indexing and extracting. For more information, check the websites: <<http://www.jewishgen.org/reipp>> and <<http://www1.jewishgen.org/krsig>>.

SIG Data Success Story

by Dolores Lee Ring

When I started my RYNG research, I sorted all of the Ryngs I found into family groups, but Wigdor Szlama RYNG/RYNK didn't fit. When it dawned on me, because of Lauren Davis's research on alternate surnames<sup>1</sup>, that I had to look for any alias on the records, and search the index for it, too. He turned out to be Wigdor Szlama RYNG v PIERSIONEK (piersionek means ring in Polish).

My knowledge of Wigdor at that point consisted of a few records: five records that I found in Chęciny, one of which I had not yet connected with Wigdor.

When I started, I just had material on Wigdor RYNG. Then I found him as a PIERSIONEK after the alternate surnames article inspired me to look at potential aliases. For a long time I thought this family was so small and insignificant that it would not have an alias like the huge Manela family in the article, so I didn't follow up on it. At that point, I could piece all the Chęciny events together. If that was all I ever knew, this family record would have been very incomplete. Through Michael Tobias's Małogoszcz extracts, I doubled what I knew. After the death of Wigdor's first wife, he moved to Olzowka, Łopuszno district. The Małogoszcz records contain his second marriage and several children's births there: Royza, Mosick, Dwoyra, Jankiel, Szlama, and Ruchla. The records certainly show that a family could live in one place, yet their records are scattered, and a person searching Małogoszcz only, for this family, would also have an equally incomplete accounting.

My finds for the STRAWCZYNSKI family were even more extensive. I started with an Icyk and some of his descendants. The death record for Icyk registered in Małogoszcz listed children that did not appear in Chęciny records. There were also references to other related lines. After examining the Małogoszcz records, I had around 22 additional STRAWCZYNSKIs. Truly, using the Małogoszcz records made an impressive difference in what I knew about this family.

Additionally, by using Alexander Beider's service, I found the only STRAWCZYNSKI who voted in Radom in 1906 was Jankiel Dawid. This is what I already knew about him: b. 1873 Kielce, line of Bendet, Moszek, Izrael, back to the progenitor Icyk. Jankiel Dawid was the grandfather of Sarah Rosen, the STRAWCZYNSKI / PACIORKOWSKI descendant who lives in Israel. Dr. Beider also told me that there was one SZTRAWCZYNSKI from Radom who was listed in Serge Klarsfeld's Memorial to Jews Deported From France. I looked the name up and found additional information. Dr. Beider always answers very promptly, with information that helps to continue the family in the later years for which there is no microfilm, only direct requests to Poland.

Extract Data in this Issue

Opatów

Marriages 1855-1862
Births, Marriages and Deaths 1826-1830

The vital record extracts for this issue are 1855-1862 Opatów marriages, prepared by Warren Blatt, and 1826-1841 Przytyk births, marriages and deaths, prepared by Lauren B. Eisenberg Davis. This data has been extracted from the civil registration records in possession of the Polish State Archives, and microfilmed by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (LDS). These extractions include information derived directly from the original registrations on the following LDS microfilms:

#0,809,165 Opatów 1855-1862
#0,729,068 Przytyk 1826-1830

Additional films are available for both towns.

Opatów

The vital event register of Opatów includes residents of Łagów, Cmielów and Słupia. The following abbreviations appear in the extracts: (d): deceased, (mn): maiden name, (w): widowed, (div): divorced.

Przytyk

The vital event register of Przytyk includes residents of Białobrzegi and Wyśmierzyce as well as other villages in the area. The Przytyk registers from which this data was extracted are all unindexed on the LDS film.

Twins are denoted by an asterisk (*). The notation on death records for parents and survivors is as follows: f=father, m=mother, h=husband, w=wife, b=brother, s=son, d=daughter. An occupation abbreviation appears in the original records as pakt and paht, as well as other variants. It probably represents pachciarz (tenant), but there is no concrete evidence.

Some death records list the decedent by patronymic with no explicit parents' names provided. It is sometimes ambiguous whether the patronymic is the father, grandfather, or in the case of women, the husband. It is left to the individual researcher to analyze each applicable case based on a full collection of records for a specific family.

The Przytyk birth records show a cross reference to death records located for the same individual, the same for deaths. This is not comprehensive. Many of the death records do not include surnames and/or parents' names. In those cases, it is not possible to determine the full identity of the decedent, and link it conclusively with a birth record.

Caveats

Spelling varies from record to record. All conjectured information is enclosed in square brackets. The conjectures do not appear in the record itself. Conjectured surnames were derived from an analysis of all the data, tracking families over an extended period of time.

Some of the data is subject to error, either in the clerk's original transcription, or from interpretation of the handwriting from the poor quality of the films and original record books. Items that are questionable are followed by a question mark. Ages were often inexact as reported at the time of registration. As always, it is prudent for the researcher, when using secondary source data, to examine the primary source data for final verification. It is always best for the researcher to view the actual records pertaining to his/her family to verify the interpretation, and glean additional facts.

<sup>3</sup> no village by this name located, perhaps Grodziek or Grotki<sup>4</sup> It is unclear if the mother and child were both named Mindla (i.e. the mother died at childbirth) or if this is a clerical error. No death record was found for Mindla in this time frame.<sup>5</sup> Layzrowiczów on death record<sup>6</sup> unclear if both the baby and father were named Abram Jcek, or a clerical error. No death record was found for a man named Abram Jcek in this time frame.<sup>7</sup> surname spelled both ABRATZ and ABRAC<sup>8</sup> This record was quite strange. There were two records listed under the single number 25. The second record was crossed out, and it seems that this is a cross between the father of #26 and the mother and baby of #25. Hence, it seems correct to presume that the first entry for #25 is the correct one. In fact, from prior records, Kiwa Goldsztein's wife is indeed Chana Lewkowiczowna.

This is your last issue for 1997 ... It's time to renew for 1998!

This issue completes our publications for the year. Now it's time to renew your membership in the Kielce-Radom SIG in order to receive the 1998 quarterly journals.

Please fill out and return the enclosed reorder form as quickly as possible. If it is missing, send your membership dues before Dec. 1, 1997, to avoid the $2.00 annual increase.

After that date, membership goes to $26 (for U.S., Canada), $32 (all others), plus $6 additional for airmail delivery overseas.

Make checks payable to "KR SIG" and mail to: Gene Starn, Coordinator, c/o KR SIG, P.O. Box 520583, Longwood, FL 32752, U.S.A.

Towns Referenced in Przytyk Records

The Przytyk registry includes records that refer to other towns and villages, either in the immediate registration area, or places that out-of-town brides and grooms came from. The latitude and longitude, as well as the distance from Przytyk, were derived from the JewishGen World Wide Web database Shtetl Seeker. This database can be accessed at the following URL address <<http://www1.jewishgen.org/ShtetlSeeker>>

The Kielce-Radom SIG Family Finder

The Kielce-Radom Family Finder consists of three parts. The first lists the surnames being sought by members of the Special Interest Group who have submitted their names. Only towns from Kielce-Radom gubernias are shown. The second lists the names of the towns these people came from, and the third lists the researchers together with their identifying number, mailing and e-mail address.

In using the finder, we suggest you search for variant spellings of the surnames you are seeking as these sometimes change depending on the time period and locale.
