... but first a word from our editor

In this issue, we have another selection of varied articles relating to Jewish life in the former Kielce and Radom Gubernias.

The focus of several pieces in this issue is the town of Stopnica ("Stabnitz", in Yiddish), in southeastern Kielce gubernia. There has been no Yizkor Book published for Stopnica, and no extant vital records before 1875. But we have pulled together several diverse articles, translated from Hebrew, Yiddish, and Polish. The first is a translation of the Stopnica entry from Yad Vashem's Hebrew-language Pinkas HaKehillot, "Encyclopaedia of Jewish Communities". We again thank Yad Vashem for granting permission to translate and publish these excerpts, which began with the entry for Pińczów in our last issue.

Other items about Stopnica are Alek Silver's "Memorial Anniversary for a Jewish Town in Poland", translated from the Yiddish magazine Der Onheib by our coordinator Mark Froimowitz; a recollection of the extermination of the Jews of Stopnica as told by a Polish witness; and a transcription of the 1929 Business Directory entries for Stopnica.

We also continue our translated excerpts from two guides to the holdings of the Polish State Archives branch in Radom. In this issue, we provide translations of the descriptions of two Radom gubernia administration collections – the records of the provincial-level government. These inventories reference specific documents concerning the Jews in towns throughout the region – including some in towns for which there are no vital records.

Also in this issue is an excerpt from the Wierzbnik-Starachowice Yizkor Book, published in Tel Aviv in 1973. Abe Zuckerman gives us "The Last Impressions of My Home Town", translated from the Yiddish by Vivian Glass Felsen. And to lead off the issue, Sy Taubenblatt describes his recent visit to Busko-Zdrój, 10 miles west of Stopnica.

The extracts of Jewish vital records from LDS microfilms in this issue include the largest set of marriages we've published to date: over 1,000 marriages from Przedbórz, covering 1855-1886, extracted by Dolores Lee Ring, thus completing our extracts of all the Jewish marriage records of Przedbórz microfilmed by the LDS. We also welcome a new extractor, Florence Weingram, who presents the births in the city of Radom for 1842-1844.

There are still no extracts for "new" towns in this issue; both are for towns where we have previously published extracts. This is the second consecutive issue in which we have had to do this, and this trend is likely to continue, until someone comes forward to do extracts for other towns. There are still nearly 40 towns in the Kielce-Radom region for which we have not published any extracts. I sincerely hope that records from those towns, as well as other material, will appear in future pages of our Journal... but only you can make that happen.

Busko Zdrój: Where My Father Vacationed in the 1920's

by

Selig A. (Sy) Taubenblatt

In October/November 2000, following my retirement, after a long career with the US Government and the private sector, I visited Poland for the first time. The purpose of my visit to Poland was to see where my parents and grandparents lived pre World War II and during the war. I also gathered information about the history of my family to be included in a book that I am writing on the subject.

My father, Jacob Herz Taubenblatt (known as Jack) was born in Staszów where he and his family lived for many years. My dad came to the United States in 1932, but most of his immediate family perished in the Holocaust. My mother, Mollie Flaum Taubenblatt, was born in Szczucin, which for many years was part of Galicia, a province in the Austro-Hungarian Empire. My mother came to the United States in 1916, but traveled back and forth to Poland a number of times. In addition to these two cities, my ancestors born in the 19th century came from other cities which today is south-central Poland, including Nowy Korczyn, Pińczów, Chmielnik, Stopnica, and Połaniec. These cities at different times in Polish history were located in the Kielce, Sandomierz, Pinczów and Stopnica districts.

In preparing for my trip to south-central Poland it was necessary to find a central point—a city and hotel—in the area where I could stay, and from there visit the various cities mentioned above. I recalled that in my many discussions with my dad through the years, he mentioned Busko Zdrój, a resort city close to Staszów. I consulted a map and found that Busko Zdrój was very central to the various cities where my ancestors came from—no more than 15-25 miles radius. I called ORBIS, the Polish travel agency in New York, and asked that they recommend a hotel where I could stay during my travels through south-central Poland. I asked ORBIS to find a hotel where some of its guests are likely to speak English and where I could find transportation to visit the various shtetls in that area.

A few days later, ORBIS called and recommended the Marconi Resort. ORBIS said it was the best of its kind in Busko Zdrój. I asked that ORBIS fax a flyer on the resort and so they did. As I looked at the picture of the Marconi, it seemed very familiar. I immediately went to a box of photos that my dad had left which were taken when he was a young man. I found numerous pictures of my dad in Busko Zdrój at the Marconi Resort. The photos were dated 1928 and 1929. It was an awesome feeling to know that I would be traveling to Busko Zdrój and would be staying at the Marconi, the same resort where my dad stayed in the late 1920s.

In preparing for my trip to Poland, I did some reading about Busko Zdrój and its history.¹ The city is located very central to Pińczów, Chmielnik, Stopnica, and Staszów, which are accessible by a short automobile drive from Busko Zdrój. The Marconi borders the Świętokrzyskie Mountains and the Miechowska Upland in the Valley of the Nida River. It is located in a resort park within these boundaries. The history of Busko Zdrój dates back to the middle of the 12th century and its establishment is connected with Knight Derslaw and his brother Bishop Witus who brought a female Norbertine Convent to a shepherd's settlement in 1180-1185. The convent was given a land property and was established in 1287 as the property of the Catholic Church. In that year, Prince Leszek Czarny granted Busko Zdrój civil rights.

Marconi Resort, 1928

During the entire 18th century, Jews were permitted to establish their households in nearby villages, and after 1840, the Russian authorities displaced the Jewish population from the areas around Busko Zdrój. It was only after 1880 that a Jewish community was openly established in the town. The Jewish population of Busko Zdrój in 1880 was 384 persons (24.2% of total); 1887, 895 (41%); and 1931, 1,464 (37%). During World War II, approximately 2,000 Jews from Busko Zdrój and neighboring villages were held in the local Busko ghetto, and on October 1, 1942, the ghetto was dismantled and the Jews were transported to the extermination camp at Treblinka.

I embarked on my trip to Poland on October 24, 2000, arriving in Warsaw where I spent a few days visiting the city and gathering information about south-central Poland at the Jewish Historical Institute and at Our Roots--the Jewish Information and Tourist Bureau at 6 Twarda Street, Warsaw. From Warsaw, I traveled via express train to Kraków—about a 2½ hour trip and after a few days in Kraków, traveled to Busko Zdrój, where I made my base of operations over a 6-day period as I visited the various villages where my ancestors were born and lived. The drive from Kraków to Busko Zdrój via Nowy Korczyn was a distance of about 60 miles. The roads were reasonably good, not much traffic and most of the countryside was populated with forestland and farms, mostly private ownership, many farms growing potatoes used in the production of vodka. It was a sunny, mild fall day when I arrived in Busko Zdrój at the Marconi Resort. We drove through the City of Busko Zdrój and were able to observe both old and new buildings and commercial enterprises.

For many centuries Busko Zdrój was known for the medicinal qualities of its mineral water. In the 19th century, General Rezwuski tried to win support from the authorities to establish a company for exploitation of Busko waters. To achieve his goal, he met the Russian governor, Prince Paskiewicz. A company was established and the construction of the resort was started. Henryk Marconi, a professor at the Warsaw School of Fine Arts, was asked to design the facility. Marconi was one of the most famous architects of his time, having designed the Bristol Hotel in Warsaw. The Marconi Resort/Spa, named after Henryk Marconi, was completed in 1836. Located in a magnificent landscaped park designed by horticulturist Ignacy Hanuse, the park includes some 4,500 rare varieties of trees and bushes. The Marconi has various exercise and health facilities such as sulfur, iodine and bromide baths, can accommodate about 170 persons, and provides treatment for various disorders such as osteoporosis and other bone or muscle disorders. Though I did not have a need to use the medical facilities, I found that the Marconi was an ideal location, which included good sleep facilities and three meals per day should one wish to avail himself of the Marconi dining room. Most of the people staying at the Marconi were in an age range of 50 – 80 years old, both singles and couples. Some came for medical treatment while others stayed for rest and relaxation. The Marconi was located in a large park area fenced with an iron gate and traffic was prohibited in the park area, thus permitting one to take long walks in a quiet, scenic setting.

I was most fortunate to find a young man, a student at the University in Kielce who majored in journalism. He worked at the Marconi and spoke English well. He was willing to drive me to the various villages where my ancestors had lived and act as my interpreter. Each day we would set out to visit one or two villages, drive around the village, ask questions, and search for the Jewish synagogue or cemetery that may have survived the Nazi occupation. We drove through Busko Zdrój on numerous occasions. Farms surround the city and the city itself has many small businesses and some very light manufacture. The population is about 26,000 and many of its residents work in and around Busko Zdrój, including distances as far as Kielce and Tarnów.

I visited the synagogue, or its remains, which is located at 6 Partyzantow Street. It is a concrete structure, which was built in 1929 to replace a wooden house of prayer. Next door to the synagogue a kosher butcher was formerly located. After 1945, the entire interior of the synagogue was dismantled and adjusted for commercial use.

Today, the former synagogue is a retail garment shop that sells outdoor clothing such as jackets and sweaters. In looking around the interior, one could see some discernable Hebrew markings. What remains of the synagogue is the old architecture and its exterior. I spent much time trying to locate the Jewish cemetery which I was advised was located on Widuchowska Street. I was told that the cemetery covered about a 0.5-hectare area, was unfenced, and was covered with grass and weeds, with few traces of what was once a cemetery. We drove up and down Widuchowska Street, and while we found a number of open areas, we could not find the cemetery.

My stay at the Marconi was an awesome experience, knowing that my dad, who passed away in 1999 at the age of 98, had visited and vacationed at this resort. Having seen a number of my dad's early photos taken in Busko Zdrój, I was able to identify a number of landmarks, particularly at the Marconi and its environs. As I walked through the halls of the Marconi, slept in my hotel room, walked through the park area and sat on the benches that surrounded the Marconi, thoughts ran through my mind which placed me at some of the same locations where my dad spent happy days with friends in the late 1920s.

On November 5, 2000, following visits to Nowy Korczyn, Stopnica, Chmielnik, Pińczów, Połaniec, Szczucin and Kielce, I departed Busko Zdrój for Staszów, where my dad and his family lived pre-World War II. The distance between the two cities is about 20 miles. This was my first visit to Staszów. The visit was a very emotional experience for me, since my stay in Staszów coincided with the November 8 date, when on that fatal day in 1942 (58 years ago), the Jewish Ghetto was dismantled and about 5,000 Jews were transported to the extermination camps at Belzec and Treblinka. My grandmother, four aunts, an uncle and their families were among those from Staszów that perished.

My visit to south-central Poland, particularly my stay in Busko Zdrój and Staszów left many deep emotional memories, which I will never forget. Never!

Stopnica was founded in the 12th century. Originally it was a private village, but by the end of that century it was taken over by the monarchy. In 1362 King Casimir the Great conferred the status of a city on Stopnica, and this new stature contributed to its further development. A short time later, the population numbered 870. According to privileges of the 14th and 15th centuries, the villagers were permitted three market days a week and one annual fair. In 1579 there were 64 craftsmen and two merchants. During the Swedish Wars, Stopnica was destroyed, and reconstruction began only at the beginning of the 18th century. It never returned to its previous stature, and finally in 1869 its status as a city was rescinded.

Jewish residents of Stopnica were first mentioned in the middle of the 17th century. In 1663, a few years after the Swedish Wars, the Jews received special communal privileges, including the right to build a synagogue and to establish a cemetery, and a partial exemption from royal taxation. These privileges drew many additional Jews to the town, and in the course of time they played a central role in its business and industrial affairs. The 1663 privileges were renewed in 1752, but the community had to sign a contract with the Christian merchants. A similar contract was signed in 1773 which restricted Jews to working in their existing trades and occupations, and controlled their right to live only in specific neighborhoods.

The importance of the Stopnica Jewish community in the 18th century is attested to by the fact that in 1754 the delegates of the Sandomierz-Kraków galil (province) of the "Council of the Four Lands" convened there. Some of the community rabbis of the 17th and 18th centuries known to us by name are: Rabbi Aryeh Leib, author of "Shaagat Aryeh" and "Kol Shahal" (who served 1679-1682 and then moved to Zamość); Rabbi Aryeh Leib HaKohen (died 1721 in Rzeszów); Rabbi Yitzhak HaKohen Rappaport (1767, who moved to Pińczów); and his more famous brother, Rabbi Yitzhak Avraham HaKohen Rappaport (died 1809).

In the 19th century, as the Hasidic population of Stopnica began to grow, Rabbi Mordechai HaLevi Pardes was appointed as Rav of the community. He was the brother of Rabbi Meir of Apt (Opatów), and the student of Rabbi Elimelech of Leżajsk and "HaHozeh MiLublin" [the "Seer of Lublin", R. Yaakov Yitzchak, 1745-1815]. As he grew old, R. Mordechai HaLevi Pardes moved to Staszów. In 1877, Rabbi Menachem Mendel, author of "Nefesh Haya" served as Rav in the city. Others who served the community in the rabbinate included Rabbi Hayim Yitzhak HaKohen, in 1906; Rabbi Shmuel HaKohen, 1920, signator of the call to join "Agudat Israel"; and in 1924-1937 Rabbi Shaul HaKohen Schwartz.

The Jewish community of Stopnica grew rapidly in the 19th century, and by the beginning of the 20th century they comprised 70% of the total population. Most were petty traders and craftsman. Germany conquered the area at the beginning of World War I, but in 1915 the Russian army returned to take control for a short while. The Russian soldiers accused the Jews of cooperating with the enemy, persecuted them, confiscated their possessions, and exiled many to Russia.

Again in 1919, soon after the war ended, Polish anti-Semites attacked the Jews. The Jewish representatives in the Polish Sejm (parliament) reported to the prime minister on the riots in Stopnica where property was confiscated and Jews beaten. Some were injured severely.

After the local Polish government was formed, the Jews began to rebuild their community. The Joint Distribution Committee helped to create a People's Bank and a Business Bank, which helped with loans to assist new businesses. In the beginning of 1928, a branch of Bank Handlovi of "Agudat Israel" was also established.

In the 1920s and 1930s, many residents, especially the young, joined Zionist parties and movements. The first and most important of these was "Mizrachi", whose district council was located in Stopnica during the 1930s. There was also a branch of General Zionists in the city. The Left Labor Zionists was the most active of the Zionist-socialist parties. Its members founded the Union of Jewish Workers in Stopnica. In 1931 a branch of "HaChalutz" was created with 60 members; and in 1935, 20 of them started a Hachsharah in a nearby village farm for agricultural training. One member died in a work accident. Youth movements were also active, including "Young Mizrachi" and "The Zionist Youth". The Zionist movements organized cultural and educational activities and founded a library, opened clubs, and started Hebrew classes. From time to time Zionist leaders from Eretz Yisrael and Poland visited. On the eve of the 1930 elections to the Sejm, Yitzhak Greenboim visited the city and received an enthusiastic welcome, and delegates from the communities in the area convened in Stopnica. Also in that year Rabbi Moshe Yakobson from Tel Aviv lectured on the work of the Jewish National Fund.

The results of the 1939 elections to the 21st Zionist Congress were: Mizrachi - 133 votes, Al HaMishmar - 44 votes, Left Labor Zionists - 31 votes, General Zionists - 18 votes, and Eretz Yisrael HaOvedet - 15 votes.

Alongside the Zionist movements, the "Bund" and "Agudat Yisrael", with its youth movement "Tsierei Agudat Yisrael", also operated in Stopnica. An orthodox school, financed by Bank Handlovi, "Bait Jakob", opened in 1932 with 150 students. Some boys studied in the traditional cheder, but many children of the community, boys and girls, studied in the general public school.

For many years the Orthodox controlled the administration of the community and its institutions. In 1931, for the first time, Zionists participated in the elections for the community council. A combined list of General Zionists and Mizrachi received 209 votes and three seats on the council, Agudat Yisrael received 217 votes and four seats, and the independent Hassidic List 62 votes and one seat.

In the absence of effective government at the outbreak of World War II, local Christians residents took advantage of the opportunity to persecute Jews in the city, plundering shops and houses. The Germans conquered the area on September 8, 1939, and immediately burned the Jewish quarter, killing four Jews. Acts of terror and official persecution occurred continuously from then on. At the beginning of 1940, the local German commander, Niederman, ordered the wearing of white Magen David armbands. At the same time a Judenrat [Jewish council] was created. Their first task was to collect 50,000 zloty as a "contribution" to the Germans. In April 1940 the Germans took 13 Jews from their Pesach seder table, tortured them in the street, and then shot them to death. In summer of 1940 the Judenrat was required to supply forced labor for farm work and digging drainage ditches in nearby villages for the token sum of 4 zloty per week.

Early in the year 1941 a ghetto was established. Even though the ghetto was not fenced in, Jews were not allowed to leave except in order to go to work. The Judenrat established workshops for about 200 craftsmen, mostly working in textiles. In the same year hundreds of refugees were brought from Łódź, Kraków, Radom, and Płock. By May 1941 the ghetto population reached 4,600. Due to the crowded living conditions and the prevalent hunger there was an outbreak of typhus. With the help of the ISS organization of Kraków, the Judenrat opened a soup kitchen and a dispensary. In February 1942 there were 4,700 Jews in the ghetto of Stopnica, but by April that number had increased to 5,300. The mortality rate was quite high among the refugees and by June, 400 had died of hunger and various diseases.

On September 5, 1942. SS troops aided by Polish police and units of Ukrainians surrounded the ghetto. The following day, September 6th, all Jews were ordered to assemble in the central square near the entrance to Stopnica. Then the Germans and Ukrainians searched the houses for those who might be hiding. 400 Jews, mostly invalids and elderly who had trouble leaving their houses were captured and promptly shot on the spot. A selection took place at the central square and fifteen hundred able and younger Jews, who were able to work, were deported in trucks belonging to the munitions company Hasag to a work camp in Skarżysko-Kamienna [See Kielce-Radom SIG Journal, IV:3]. The rest, about 3,000 men, women, and children, were marched to nearby Szczucin [11 miles southeast] and from there taken by train to the death camp at Treblinka. About 70 Jews remained in Stopnica, and these were forced by the Germans to bury the dead and to collect and sort the possessions of the exiled. After seven weeks, these workers were taken to the Sandomierz ghetto, and together with the remainder of the Jews in the area, were sent from there to various labor camps.

Only a few of the Jews of Stopnica survived the Shoah and lived to once again experience freedom. Today there are no Jews in Stopnica.

Memorial Anniversary for a Jewish Town in Poland

by Alek Silver (Toronto)

from Der Onheib, number 21, pages 48-49, 1992.

Translated from Yiddish by Mark Froimowitz

translator's comments are indicated by []

Lord of the Universe!

Here people lived and worked, danced and sang!

Here they used to curse, here they used to bless ...

Here people cried and laughed and screamed,

Here they rocked their children in cradles,

Here children to their mothers clung.

Here at weddings, they made merry ...

Lord of the Universe!

Was it here that Jews pulled the golden thread for generations?

Was it here that Jews forged the golden chain?

The above mentioned lines are from the poem "Shadows from the Warsaw Ghetto", written by the martyred Jewish-Soviet poet Itzik Feffer seeing the destruction in Poland. Although the words were written for the city of Warsaw, Jewish Warsaw, these lines apply to every Jewish city, town, and village in Poland from before the Second World War. Not only Warsaw, the Jewish Warsaw, was destroyed in the Nazi devastation. Also wiped out were hundreds of cities and towns, Jewish cities and towns, from the Polish landscape. The same can be said for other countries in Europe.

I purposely did not give above the name of my town that I want to lament. The reason is that hundreds of Jewish readers of this journal, seeing the heading above the article, will themselves know the heading. Although, I will specifically write about my town, the same can be written about many, many Jewish places in Poland. Life in these communities, with certain small differences, was essentially the same. The same Jewish people, the same way of life, almost the same institutions and organizations, and certainly the same Jewish hearts and souls. For these Jewish cities and towns, it is now 50 years since they were destroyed. For a few, perhaps 49 years, but for all, the last fateful decree was given in the fall of 1942.

The name of my town is Stopnitz. Where is this town to be found? In joking words, one can say in "the estates of the king of poverty". How large was Stopnitz? As large as "the small print in a small prayer book". The true answer to the first question is in central Poland, the province of Kielce, the county of Busko. How large was it? As large as the world, since many residents of Stopnitz lived their entire lives there and this was the only world they knew.

According to the official archives, there were already Jewish inhabitants in Stopnitz in the year 1663, about 12-15 families. In 1827, there were already 1,014 Jews there. That means an estimated 49% of the general population. And this is how the Jewish population grew from year to year and from generation to generation. Until, at the beginning of the Second World War, Stopnitz had 2,600 Jewish souls. In the first years of the war, the number of Jewish inhabitants increased when Jews from larger cities in the surrounding area came here to seek a more "secure refuge". According to official numbers, there were 5,300 Jews there in April 1942.

I left Stopnitz in October 1942. "Left" is certainly not the correct expression for my parting with the town. One could use "dragged from", "chased out", "driven away", and other such similar expressions. Nevertheless, I, together with a multitude of 1,500 young Jewish men and women, went "voluntarily" to a work camp – Skarzysko. The pretext was that, by our going away, the Jews left behind would remain alive in a ghetto in the town. This was an enormous lie. Not long after, the remaining Jews were driven out of the town so that by January 1943, Stopnitz was "Judenrein" [free of Jews].

No matter how small Stopnitz was, it possessed so much that it is simply difficult to relate. The town had Chassidim, Misnaggdim [the opponents of Chassidism], and the non-religious, dignified old men with long, gray beards and lively, beautiful young people. We had our share of scholars, fools, and crazy people, our share of those who worked with their hands, rich merchants, and poor people. There was a Zionist Organization, a "Betar", "Agudah", "Mizrachi", and even an illegal Communist movement, a shul [synagogue], a house of study, shtiblech [small Chassidic synagogues], a mikveh [ritual bathhouse], a slaughterhouse, meeting places, and libraries. Jewish newspapers such as "Haint" [Today], "Haintike Naves" [Today's News], "Moment", Jewish youth journals and other publications that used to come from Warsaw, as well as Jewish books, were grabbed by Jewish readers, large and small. More than one Shabbos [Sabbath/Saturday] afternoon did young girls spend reading weekly romance novels and fantasize about a world that they only knew from the written word.

I am reminded of the market days when the market was packed with horses and wagons from the surrounding villages. Male and female peasants used to bring their products to sell and to buy the things they needed from Jewish small businesses and artisans. And who can forget the Shabbos afternoon walks in the market when boys and girls would eye each other from a distance. The family walks, when father, mother, and children, dressed in their Shabbos clothing would, on nice summer days, go for a walk to the "Pniokel" [brook], around the "Toomeleh" [small Catholic chapel], and around other parts of the town or to drop in on relatives for a glass of tea with sugar, listening to the stories that they would tell there. Children use to go to grandpa and grandma or uncle and aunt to receive a Shabbos fruit. An apple from the aunt and a pinch on the cheek from uncle and out to play behind the butcher shops. Shabbos after prayers when the youth of the town carried the cholent [Shabbos stew that cooks very slowly on low heat] from the bakery. We observed the size of the pots in order to rate the "wealth" of the "balebuste" [housewife].

I remember the rainy autumn days when the gutters overflowed and the surrounding earth was covered in mud where more than one left a boot or galosh. The winter frost that "painted" flowers on the frozen window panes. The high piles of snow that often covered the "khatas" [dwellings] up to their chimneys. If one had a few pieces of dry wood and heated the tile oven, it was truly a pleasure for large and small. And not to mention having a few "zshemekes" (potatoes) to bake in the hot embers, that was a taste of the Garden of Eden.

Understandably, the main language was Yiddish with a sprinkling a Polish from the so-called "intelligentsia" and a little Hebrew from the lovers of Zion. We did not have movies or a theater in Stopnitz and also very few radios except for those that we put together ourselves. From time to time, "itinerant" actors, Jewish and non-Jewish, would come and there was a performance. This usually took place in the hall of the firefighters with hastily nailed together wings and decorations. The entire town would at that time go to the "Theater".

It is now a half century since my town shared the same fate as hundreds of other cities and towns in Poland. When I, on the day of my departure, sitting on a truck, threw my last glance at the town, at the high cross of the church, the picture of the town was etched in my memory forever. There it will remain together with the memories, good and bad, that reminds that "There Once Was".

In 1942, there was an end to Jewish life in Poland as we knew it. In his poem, Itzik Feffer continues.

... no longer are Jews here. Here others now live, who brought Hell on earth.

... They sit at our tables and guzzle,
They lie in our beds and sleep ...
... In our boots to churches they run...

And we all know how true these lines are about my birth town.

Every year our society comes together, like many other town landsmanshaften to say a public Kaddish [Jewish prayer for the dead] for the Jewish holy martyrs of the town, for our nearest and dearest, for those who haven't even left a memory of themselves. It is understandable that the name of the town, Stopnitz, or the names of hundreds of other settlements are thereby remembered. However, we don't sufficiently mourn the living place but only its Jewish inhabitants. Today, I will lament the town, the physical place, on the 50th memorial anniversary. You will still presumably find today a small dot on the Polish map, a dot as big as the head of a pin and, near it, the inscription "Stopnica". However, it is not the Jewish Stopnitz, where I was born, where I lived my first young years, the place of my learning in cheder [religious school] and my education in school, where I and many of my town once lived. Jewish Stopnitz no longer exists. The one that I still remember so well and that will remain in my memories until the day of my death.

Yisgadal v'yiskadash ... [the first words of the Kaddish], my Jewish town of Stopnitz.

The policy of extermination was directed with full brutality against the Jewish population.

There were approximately 25,000 Jews in the Stopnica powiat during the occupation. Like in other areas, it all started with separating the Jewish population through identification marks. Each Jew over the age of 10 was required to wear on their arm a six-cornered star. This was followed in quick succession with public orders forcing Jews to carry out various types of labor, initially in the vicinity of their residences. Germans took every opportunity to demean and humiliate these people, including physical torture. The instances of outright thievery became more frequent. German dignitaries of various types within the country's government, Gestapo officials, and policemen supplied themselves with the best merchandise in Jewish shops without paying. Jews were systematically forced to pay ransoms. A Jew Taubenblatt was in charge of bringing Jewish contributions and ransoms to the county authorities in Busko-Zdrój.

One of the ways to harm the Jewish population was by depriving it of food rations and putting restrictions on food purchases. For the poor, these actions were equivalent to a sentence of death by starvation. Shooting unarmed people for insignificant transgressions was a common form of persecution.

In 1941, I became friendly with Henryk Nozyc, a young Jewish intellectual in Stopnica. Having access to the underground press "Rocha", I shared each issue with him. I hoped to spark in this way his interest in the existence and activities of the underground organization. Regretfully, our contacts never went beyond this sharing of the publications, and over time, they died out.

The final act of the Jewish tragedy arrived. In October of 1942, Germans started the transport of Stopnica county Jews to extermination camps. One sunny Sunday afternoon in October, a gang of drunk German soldiers herded into Stopnica a large group of Jews from Staszów, on the border of the Sandomierz powiat. From here, these extraordinarily exhausted and run down people were taken further on to a train in Szczucin.

The 23 kilometer road between Staszów and Stopnica was a ghastly sight, strewn with the corpses of men, women, and children. During one momentary rest break in Stopnica, a Jewish woman went into labor, howling in pain. She was mercilessly shot.

The extermination of Stopnica's Jewish population commenced on October 5. My Jewish neighbors spent the preceding night away from their homes. However, they returned the following evening. My neighbors, like other Stopnica Jews, were victims of a deadly hoax. On that day, the community representative supplied Germans with a large bribe, receiving in return the assurance that the liquidation orders would be suspended for the time being. So pacified, the population returned to their homes at night, only to be rounded up the next morning on the town's main square. Streets and alleys of the town were covered with the bodies of innocent people. The German executioners showed no mercy. An occasional child ran into the street from one of the abandoned houses - left there purposely or forgotten - dressed in a meager shirt and crying out for the mother. Such children were shot on the spot.

Hipolit Zieknica and I witnessed an episode when two German soldiers led into a path toward the cemetery a young Jewish woman with a small child, both discovered in a hideaway in a bale of hay. At some moment, the soldier stopped, letting her go ahead, and shot her dead, with a helpless child standing by. The soldier then walked up to the child, lifted it and placed it on top of the dead mother, and then shot it. When the murder was completed, the soldier walked away calmly with a self-satisfied expression on his face.

One Jewish woman left her little daughter at a Catholic cemetery. The crying child was discovered by a casual visitor and taken to the nearby hospital. The nuns working at the hospital took the girl under their wings, and shortly, she was taken in by a childless married couple in Busko-Zdrój. A few Jews managed to hide with peasant families in the nearby villages. A few people, such as the sisters Cukier [Amazingly, this seems to be referring to our Coordinator's mother and aunt. However, they were not in Starachowice but at the Skarżysko slave labor camp. See Kielce-Radom SIG Journal, IV:3] and Miss Redlich from Stopnica, survived by working as forced laborers at Starachowice Works. Several slave workers, including the brothers Redlich from Stopnica, escaped from the Starachowice Works. They survived the German occupation by joining the partisans.

Stopnica peasants lent the Jews a helping hand by providing food and, during the tragic days of extermination, by hiding them. Such acts were punishable with death on the helper or even their whole family. Despite such terrifying punishments, many Poles were willing to risk their lives to help persecuted Jews.

According to (Magister) Smazynski, there were 26,136 Jews in residence in the Stopnica county during the occupation. Only a few dozen survived. The rest were murdered.

Transcribed below are the entries for Stopnica from the 1929 Polish business directory Księga Adresowa Polski (Wraz z w.m. Gdańskiem) dla Handlu, Przemysłu Rzemiosła i Rolnictwa [Directory of Poland (including Gdańsk) for trade, industry, handicraft and agriculture], (Warszawa, 1929), from pages 300-301. For more information about this directory, see Kielce-Radom SIG Journal IV:1 (Winter 2000), pages 27-29.

We thank JRI-Poland for making these pages available to us. JRI-Poland is currently engaged in a project to transcribe this entire 3,000 page directory, and create a searchable online database. If you would like to help, please see their web pages at <<http://www.jewishgen.org/jri-pl/bizdir/start.htm>>.

The directory is organized by province, then by town, and then by occupation within each town. The occupations are listed alphabetically in Polish (except for the first few medical/legal professions), with French translation following. I have added the English translation of each occupation. Each town listing starts with information about the town – the larger the town, the more comprehensive the description.

Excerpts from Radom Archives Catalogs

Translated from the Polish by Gordon McDaniel

Edited by Warren Blatt

Editor's Introduction: In this issue, we present translated excerpts from two different guides to the holdings of the Polish State Archives in Radom. The first guide in the official catalog, published by the Archives: Archiwum Państwowe w Radomiu: przewodnik po zasobie archiwalnym [State Archives in Radom: Guide to Archival Materials], compiled under the editorship of Helena Kisiel, (Warszawa: Naczelna Dyrekcja Archiwów Państwowych, 1996). We previously published a translation of the introductory sections of this guide in Kielce-Radom SIG Journal IV:4 (Autumn 2000), pages 9-20. The second guide is Adam Penkalla's survey of the specifically Jewish holdings of the Radom Archives: Akta dotyczące Żydów w radomskim Archiwum Państwowym (1815-1950) [Records relating to Jews in the Radom State Archives (1815-1950)], (Warszawa: Żydowski Instytut Historyczny, 1998), which we introduced in the last issue of the K-R SIG Journal, V:1 (Winter 2001), pages 11-15.

In this article, we present the descriptions of two major collections, the "Radom Gubernia Administration" fonds, from each catalog. First, the overview from the official archives catalog, and then the survey of Jewish-specific holdings in these two collections from the Penkalla guide. – WB.

Section II: General Administrative Acts

A. Acts of state administrative organs at the Województwo or Gubernia level before 1918

Introductory information

After the third Partition of Poland [1795], the Województwo (province) of Sandomierz was within the boundaries of [Austrian] Western Galicia. Initially, the territory of this województwo was in two circuits [cyrkuł] within the Austrian administration, Sandomierz and Radom; after 1803 there was one circuit (Radom) with the seat of administration in Radom. The head of the circuit was the starost, to whom the administrative personnel were subordinated. The smallest administrative units of the circuit were districts [okręg] (Radom had five districts). The representative of the starost in each district was the commissar [komisarz]. In the earliest period of Austrian rule, the circuit office for the territory that interests us was subordinate to the governor in Kraków, later in Lwów. The administrative changes of 1803 and 1804 lasted until the end of Austrian rule in 1809.

After the creation of the Duchy of Warsaw [in 1807], the territory of [West] Galicia was added to it [in 1809]. On the basis of a decree dated 17 April 1810, that territory was divided into four departments. The area that interests us became the Department of Radom, at whose head was a prefect officially subordinate to the Minister of Internal Affairs. Within his purview were all administrative organs except judicial and military. In addition to the prefect was the prefect's council. Each district [powiat] was administered by a subprefect and a district council. Department and district councils fulfilled an advisory and oversight function. The Department of Radom consisted of the districts of Kielce, Końskie, Kozienice, Opatów, Opoczno, Radom, Sandomierz, Solec, Staszów and Szydłów. After the liquidation of the Duchy of Warsaw in 1815, and the formation of the Kingdom of Poland, the old administrative divisions were occasionally observed.

On the basis of an edict by the viceregent dated 16 January 1816, the Kingdom was divided into provinces [województwo] and districts [obwód]. By separating off the district of Kielce from the Department of Radom, the Województwo of Sandomierz was created. It consisted of four districts: Sandomierz (powiaty of Sandomierz and Staszów), Opatów (powiaty of Opatów and Solec), Radom (powiaty of Radom and Kozienice) and Opoczno (powiaty of Końskie, Opoczno and Szydłów). The administrative seat of the Województwo of Sandomierz was Radom. [See map in K-R SIG Journal IV:4 (Autumn 2000), page 12].

Within the województwo government, general administration was carried out in a collegial manner by the Województwo Commission [komisja], headed by the President of the Commission [prezes komisji]. Among the responsibilities of the Commission were the offering of recommendations to state commissions, maintenance of public order, security of the bourgeois, oversight of public and private property, oversight of public education, etc. Województwo commissions were divided into divisions of religion and public education, administration, military, fiscal and police. In 1818 a division of public lands and forests was added. The next change occurred in 1821, when the administration division was joined with that of religion and public education; the military and police divisions were combined; and the divisions of fiscal and public lands and forests became one. The districts [obwód] were administered by Commisars, who were advisors to the województwo commission. The województwo commissions were active until 1837, when by an edict dated 7 March their name was changed to Gubernia, following the example of the Russian Empire. Commission Presidents were replaced by civil governors. In 1842, the districts changed name from obwód to powiat, and commisars took on the functions of head of the district.

On the basis of the edict of 21 August 1844 which went into force on 1 January 1845, the Kingdom was divided into five Gubernias instead of the previous eight. Among other changes, the Gubernia of Sandomierz was joined with Kielce and the new gubernia took the name of Gubernia of Radom with administrative center in Radom. It included the territory of the following districts: Kielce, Opatów, Opoczno, Olkusz, Miechów, Radom, Sandomierz and Stopnica. [See Map 2 in K-R SIG Journal IV:4, page 13].

At the time of the Uprising of 1830, the administration of Polish lands was connected to the traditions of the time of the First Republic. During the November Insurrection [1830] there was a return to a division into województwo, but committees of citizens, consisting of a president and two citizens, were appointed to the województwo commissions (decision of the Administrative Council dated 2 December 1830). The committees were responsible for the organization and oversight of public security.

The organization of województwo underwent a significant modification during the January Insurrection [1863]. By regulations established by the civil administration in the former Congress Poland, dated 28 March 1863, there was a return to the territorial divisions of 1816, creating the województwo of Sandomierz and Kraków out of the Gubernia of Radom, among other changes. Administration of the województwo was carried out by a civil manager [naczelnik cywilny] appointed by the National Council, and in the districts [powiat] by heads [naczelnik].

After the repression of the Insurrection, the ruling authorities, by a decree dated 31 December 1866, increased the number of gubernia to ten. The Gubernia of Radom was divided into two gubernias: Radom and Kielce. Radom Gubernia consisted of the districts [powiat] of: Iłża, Końskie, Kozienice, Opatów, Opoczno, Radom and Sandomierz. Kielce Gubernia consisted of: Jędrzejów, Kielce, Miechów, Olkusz, Pińczów, Stopnica and Włoszczowa. [See Map 3 in K-R SIG Journal IV:4, page 13].

The head of the gubernia was the governor [gubernator] who administered with the assistance of a gubernia council. He carried out general oversight of the state apparatus on the territory of the gubernia. Within his competence lie matters of politics, the police, oversight of personnel responsible to him, Catholic clergy and monasteries, and community governance, as well as personnel and disciplinary matters of public security. Over the course of time, the governor's authority was expanded with regard to police (statutes of 1870 and 1881). Some aspects of his administration the governor carried out personally, others with the assistance of the gubernia council, presiding over a council [kolegium] of department heads. The bifurcated competence of the governor caused there to be two chancelleries, one for the governor and another for the gubernia cabinet.

During the First World War, the territory of the gubernias of Radom and Kielce was occupied by Austrian forces. In May 1915 two governorships [gubernatorstwo] were created: Kielce and Piotrków. The districts [obwód] of Końskie, Kozienice, Opoczno, Piotrków, Radom, Sandomierz and Wierzbica were in the governorship of Piotrków, while the governorship of Kielce contained the districts of Dąbrow, Jędrzejów, Kielce, Olkusz, Pińczów, Stopnica (Busko-Zdroj) and Włoszczowa. From September 1915, these two governorships were united, with its administrative seat in Kielce, with the seat in Lublin from October of that year. The Governor General was the highest official with regard to administration and the judiciary and had oversight over military units on his territory. The top official of the district [powiat] was the Commandant [komendant], who was responsible for the military, administrative, economic and judicial affairs of the district. As auxiliary organs of the commandant were commands at stage stations [on highways] or police stations. The commands contained political functionaries, an engineer, doctor, veterinarian, school inspector, financial functionaries and officials dealing with problems of agriculture and forests.

In 1918 the Regency Council divided the territory which had been under Austrian control into districts [powiat] governed by district offices.

Gubernia Council of Radom [Rząd Gubernialny Radomski (RGR)]

1845-1866 (with some documents as early as 1800, some as late as 1898)

2,370 archival units, 89.81 linear meters

On the basis of the edict of 1837, the województwo was renamed a gubernia. The Województwo of Sandomierz was renamed the Gubernia of Sandomierz. In 1845 a new administrative reorganization divided the Kingdom of Poland into five gubernias. As a result of joining the Gubernia of Sandomierz with the Gubernia of Kielce, the Gubernia of Radom was formed, which was administered by the Gubernia Council of Radom located in Radom. Within its territory, the Council carried out the orders of the central government, maintained public order and provided personal security for citizens and exercised oversight over public and private property. At the head of the Council was the Civil Governor. The Council administered its territory with the aid of various divisions: general services, administration, fiscal and military/police.

The collection of acts of the RGR consists primarily of generalia (about 80%) created by the RGR itself, which came into being in 1845, or special acts relating to the southern part of Radom Gubernia. This collection also contains acts of the administrative offices of the territory prior to the creation of the RGR. Some of the acts relating to the southern part of Radom Gubernia for 1845-1866 have been transferred to the State Archives in Kielce.

The incompleteness of the RGR collection is a result of, among other things, reorganization of the governmental administration. In 1867 the RGR began to use the archival materials of its predecessor; as a matter of course they were appended to the current collection of the creator of the new records. Another reason for the incompleteness was the change in competence of the governing authority, causing the records to be moved, i.e., the Schools Directorate, the fiscal offices, the Council of State Property. Various historical cataclysms had their effect on the size of the collection.

The record collection of the RGR is now maintained in the archives on the basis of permanent deposit of the State Archives of Kielce. It contains:

Administrative Section, 1800-1870, 1784 archival units: administrative divisions, organization of offices and their location, permanent billets [jobs], pension provisions, personal affairs of employees, administration of municipal forests, disbursement of municipal payments, amortization of loans, funds for maintaining hospitals, regulation of weights and measures for villages, income from state buildings, fire protection, issuance of tariffs for traffic on the Wiśła; communal affairs in villages, historical descriptions of villages; regulation of land registry for estates, the accession of estates to the Land Credit Company [Towarzystwo Kredytowe Ziemskie], establishment, funding and repair of churches, organization of secular clergy, functioning of monasteries, oversight of synagogues, legates.

Fiscal Section, 1821-1866 (1898), 388 archival units: compensation of fiscal contributions, shares of the Warsaw-Vienna Railroad Company, inquiries into fiscal debts, rents and regulations, payments from owners of mills and sawmills, statutory work required from estate homesteads, holders of profits, payment of percentages, inspection of funds.

Military/Police Section, 1822-1864, 198 archival units: maintenance of night patrols in towns, surveillance, reward of good deed with medals, foreigners, lists of names of persons allowed to return from abroad, questions regarding offices and stations for transportation, regulations with regard to: servants, day-laborers, rural workers, hospitals and houses of refuge, guard houses; jailhouses and other places of imprisonment, appointment of doctors, delivery of medicine.

The record collection of the RGR (Radom-Kielce) is microfilmed from signatures 1-3268, microfilm numbers G 90267-903546.

Radom Gubernia Council (RRG) [Radomski Rząd Gubernialny] (Radomskoe Gubernskoe Pravlenie)

1867-1917

10,085 archival units, 90 linear meters

The Radom Gubernia Council began on 1 January 1867 with the administration of a newly formed Gubernia of Radom (with reduced territory). The administrative changes were made for political reasons, since the occupation government could thus keep closer oversight over the social life of the territory. Personnel changes in the chancelleries of various offices created a further stage of Russification. The broad and numerous competencies of the Council were organized into eight sections: the chairman's chancellery, and sections for administration, military/police, finance, public lands, judiciary, medicine and security.

With the creation in 1869 of fiscal offices, the sections for finance and public lands were liquidated. The security section ceased functioning in 1893.

The Gubernia Council made decisions in a collegial manner, at sessions in which not only the governor and his representatives took part, but also employees of the various sections, judges, medical inspectors, and civil engineers or construction personnel.

The RGR also had archives, a printing house and editorial board of the Gubernia official gazette.

The records of the RGR were partly removed deep into Russia during the evacuation of occupation government offices in 1915. They were returned in 1923 and 1926 and deposited in the municipal archives in Radom, and after World War II ended up in the State Archives in Radom.

Chairman's Chancellery [Kancelaria Prezydialna] (records of the editor of the official gubernia gazette "Gubernia Vedomosti", reports of accountants, fire department and executions) 1867-1917: protocols of sessions of the Gubernia Council, materials of the "Radomskie Gubernialnie Wiadomości", materials concerning fines for the illegal teaching of children in private homes (signatures 1-1034).

Administrative Section [Wydział Administracyjny] (general reports, and reports on inspections, construction, roads, municipalities, spiritual affairs, requisitions and bookkeeping) 1867-1917: statistics on the material well-being of workers, data on the numbers of farm vehicles, cases of taking Russian citizenship, lists of foreigners; appointments of deans and rabbis, lists of clergy, confirmations of the register of members of church custodianship, information on the opening of cheders, financial reports of synagogue treasuries, data on church income, reports on the division of religious property, materials regarding legal meetings and various sects; information on the opening of schools, organization of clubs, publication of newspapers and other publications; technical drawings for the construction of industrial, residential and sacral buildings, fortification of towns, electrification; construction of roads and bridges, hospitals, cemeteries, public buildings; statistical data relating to factories, quarries, artisan's workshops; organization of markets and fairs, information on prices of various articles and transportation fees; matters of administrative divisions, data on the organization of the gubernia, government positions, awards, punishments, complaints against officials, inspection of municipal administrations; information about the committee for statistics, health, fire protection, trade and community organizations (signatures 1035-7716).

2. General administration records

Administration of Gubernia of Radom I [Rząd Gubernialny Radomski I] (1815-1866)

The collection contains archivalia resulting from the activity of the above-named level of the central state administration, functioning on the territory of the Gubernia of Radom. The archivalia in the Radom fond relate only to the former Województwo of Sandomierz between the years 1807-1845, and the Gubernia of Radom, but within the administrative boundaries of that gubernia after 1866. The records of the remaining part of the gubernia, part of the former Województwo of Kraków, are in the Kielce Archives. Jewish issues are found in some of the volumes and in principle relate mostly to the affairs and events mentioned below. The records of 1807-1866 are primarily in Polish, with a smaller amount in Russian and Yiddish.

The changes in the organization of Jewish religious communities, in the groups responsible for the care of synagogues, whose functions were carried out solely with regard to religious and charitable matters, form the correspondence of those interested in these matters within the structure of state administration (vol. 4338). Also treated within the records is the question of finance of care of synagogues, with lists of rabbis and cheder teachers (melamedim) supported by the community, as well as matters of construction and care of community buildings (vol. 4339-4340).

A characteristic professional group connected with supervision but also having a great social significance were rabbis. Archival materials provide information on 62 persons engaged in the profession of rabbi in 21 communities (vol.: 4349, 4344, 4347-4350, 4353, 4355-4356, 4358-4360, 4362-4365, 4368-4369, 4371-4375, 4380-4381, 4385). In one of the volumes (vol. 4339) we find a list of rabbis from the districts of Radom, Stopnica and Opoczno. As permanent full-time rabbis, they worked primarily in towns in which there was a synagogue supervisory committee. On the other hand there were volunteer rabbis in some towns, unpaid assistants of the permanent rabbi. That category of rabbi also was responsible for the religious life of Jewish agricultural colonies that existed in the Gubernia of Radom.

A significant portion of the archivalia arose in connection with the synagogal supervisory committees in individual localities. These were primarily documents connected with the economic bases of the supervisory committees themselves: distribution of synagogue funds to individual families, depending on the funds available; community accounts, budget and inventory. Some archivalia relate to localities in which no supervisory committee existed; other records relate to matters connected with the appointment of rabbis and synagogue supervisors; construction and restoration of synagogue buildings and holdings of income from mikvah and kosher meat butchers; reading of the Torah roll, places in synagogue. In some volumes one finds correspondence of supervisory committees with state administrative structures and records of investigations in cases of financial improprieties.

The above records relate, at various times, to the synagogue supervisory committees in the following places: Ciepielów (vol. 4341); Drzewica (vol. 4342-4343); Iłża (vol. 4344); Iwaniska (vol. 4345-4346); Janowiec (vol. 4347); Kazanów (vol. 4348); Klwów (vol. 4349); Końskie (vol. 4350-4351); Kozienice (vol. 4352-4353); Lipsko (vol. 4354); Magnuszew (vol. 4355); Opatów (vol. 4356-4358); Opoczno (vol. 4359-4360); Ostrowiec (vol. 4361); Ożarów (vol. 4362); Połaniec (vol. 4363); Przedbórz (vol. 4364); Przysucha (vol. 4365); Przytyk (vol. 4366-4367); Radom (vol. 4368-4371); Radoszyce (vol. 4372-4373); Raków (vol. 4374-4375); Ryczywół (vol. 4376); Sandomierz (vol. 4377-4379); Sienno (vol. 4380); Staszów (vol. 4381-4383); Szydłowiec (vol. 4384); and Widoma Przedborska (vol. 4385).

A group of records contain historical descriptions of towns in the gubernia, in which one finds information about the number of Jews in individual places and notes about their role in the local economy. Such records are: Białobrzegi (vol. 2131); Ciepielów (vol. 2227); Ćmielów (vol. 2232); Denków (vol. 2244); Drzewica (vol. 2239); Gielniów (vol. 2265); Gliniany (vol. 2266); Głowaczów (vol. 2268); Gniewoszków and Granica (vol. 2270); Gowarczów (vol. 2272); Kazanów (vol. 2308); Klimontów (vol. 2364); Końskie (vol. 2370); Kozienice (vol. 2398); Lipsk (vol. 2445); Ostrowiec (vol. 2540); Ożarów (vol. 2545); Połaniec (vol. 2615); Przedbórz (vol. 2643); Przysucha (vol. 2648); Przytyk (vol. 2649); Radom (vol. 2698); Ryczywół (vol. 2719); Sandomierz (vol. 2728); Sienno (vol. 2746); Solec (vol. 2825); Staszów (vol. 2826); Szydłowiec (vol.

2904); Wąchock (vol. 2913); Wierzbica (vol. 2915); Wierzbnik (vol. 2916); Zawichost (vol. 2962); and Zwolen (vol. 2972);

Among the archivalia we can find information about matters connected with Jewish leases of places of consumption in various towns. These are primarily lease agreements, protocols of auctions and correspondence concerning the realization of the leases, as well as records of investigations in cases of various types of fraud. Several records relate to the following places: Denków (vol. 9530); Drzewica (vol. 9531); Grabowiec (vol. 9533); Jedlińsk (vol. 9534); Kazanów (vol. 9536); Klimontów (vol. 9540); Kłwów (vol. 9541); Koprzywica (vol. 9542); Ostrowiec (vol. 9552); Połaniec (vol. 9556); Przysucha (vol. 9559); Przytyk (vol. 9560); Szydłowiec (vol. 9572); Tarłów (vol. 9573); Waśniów (vol. 9574), Zwolen (vol. 9578).

Some of the volumes relate to Jewish leases of taprooms in individual towns or villages belonging to them. There are general contracts, protocols on establishment, sometimes disputes resulting in investigations or court cases. In addition to general matters (vol. 9676-9678), the issue of taprooms relates to various places: Gielniów (vol. 9778); Gowarczów (vol. 9779); Iłża (vol. 9780-9781); Jastrząb (vol. 9784); Kozienice (vol. 9791); Kunów (vol. 9792); Łagów (vol. 9802); Opatów (vol. 9803); Opoczno (vol. 9801, 9804); Radom (vol. 9812-9817); Radoszyce (vol. 9818-9819); Ryczywół (vol. 9821); Sandomierz (vol. 9832-9834); Skaryszew (vol. 9837); Solec (vol. 9838); Waśniów (vol. 9859-9860); and Wierzbica (vol. 9861).

Records have survived of investigations of local financial offices in connection with accusations of fraud in the case of various consumption goods. These are letters of the financial office to the gubernia administration concerning abuses (with documentation), losses sustained by the state treasury and court decisions. The following volumes contain localities in which a Jew was a party to the matter: Gowarczów (vol. 10278); Klimontów (vol. 10284); Kozienice (vol. 10287); Lipsko (vol. 10295); Łagów (vol. 10296); Opatów (vol. 10308); Osiek (vol. 10309); Ostrowiec (vol. 10310); Przedbórz (vol. 10332); Przysucha (vol. 10324); Staszów (vol. 10330); and Tarłów (vol. 10339).

The next group of records relate to Jews in various localities accused of committing economic crimes. These were often illegal operation of a taproom or engaging in a profession without official approval. The archivalia are in general correspondence of various levels of state administration, the courts, police or other governmental structures that were interested in the case. These records are grouped in volumes: 10364, 10368, 10370, 10376, 10387, 10389, 10392-10395, 10411, 10414, 10416, 10428, 10430, 10436, 10439, 10447, 10451-10452, 10458, 10461, 10465, 10467-10468, 10482-10486.

Records also tell us about Jews who converted to Catholicism (vol. 4387) or Russian Orthodoxy (vol. 4336); they bring us closer to the complex problems of changing the traditional Jewish structures into more common usage (vol. 4388-4389). There are records about the introduction of hearses as a result of regulations about burying the dead (vol. 4390); registration in the records of USC [Urząd Stanu Cywilnego - Office of Civil Registration] (vol. 4290); concerning Jewish owners of bookstores or reading rooms (vol. 4310-4311). In the case of Staszów, archivalia relate to the construction and restoration of buildings of the religious community and Jewish residents in the town (vol. 2827). In one of the volumes are kept records about Catholic institutions that, during the period prior to the Partitions [1795], invested their funds with local Jewish elders (vol. 4396).

Radom Gubernia Administration II

[In Polish: Radomski Rząd Gubernialny. In Russian: Radomskoe Gubernskoe Pravlenia] (1867-1917)

Created in 1867, Radom Gubernia existed until the outbreak of the First World War, consisting of the following districts: Iłża, Końskie, Kozienice, Opatów, Opoczno, Radom and Sandomierz. The office was the central administrative organ of the state in the above territory, and from which came records for the territory and a variety of other preserved documents.

An important group of documents were connected with the functioning of Jewish religious communities. The gubernia authorities had control over the realization of their budgets, accepted them for confirmation, approved the hiring of state workers for the community and legalized selected members of the organizations carrying out general supervision of synagogues. The use of community buildings was to a significant degree decided with the agreement of the supervisory committee, by right of ownership and use. These archivalia are in Russian.

The largest group of these records are connected with the financial bases of the supervisory committees of the synagogues, whose function here remained auxiliary to their religious role. The archivalia arose as a result of the oversight by state administrative authorities over budgets in the localities listed below. In addition to the proposed and confirmed budget, a list of names of those paying community taxes who belonged to the supervisory committee. They were classified into five groups depending on the property whose value determined the size of the tax. There was also an indication of movable and immovable property of the community. Other sources of income of the community was also taken into account, including leases for reading of the Torah, occupying places of honor in the synagogue and leases of community buildings (mikvah and kosher meat butchers). Also included was correspondence with regard to these matters. The relevant archivalia in all volumes, which have survived in various degrees, relate to the following localities:

- The next group of archivalia connected with the functioning of the supervisory committees of synagogues relates to rabbis and cantors. I define these as personal records. Beside the group of records pertaining to cantors (vol.: 5321, 5584, 5727, 6032, 9995, 10019, 10038) the greatest number provide information about rabbis working in the territory of the gubernia, about individuals fulfilling the duties of state or volunteer rabbis in 43 localities which were seats of synagogue supervisory committees (vol.: 4099, 4127, 4130, 4185, 4218, 4243, 4306, 4341, 4346, 4359, 4365, 4456, 4459, 4472, 4486, 4515, 4523, 4531, 4533, 4566, 4572, 4585, 4729, 4734, 4775, 4795, 4924, 5030, 5050-5051, 5083, 5116, 5138, 5145-5146, 5148, 5207, 5217, 5229-5230, 5270, 5291, 5326, 5352, 5367, 5412, 5468, 5629, 5944, 5976, 6033, 6043, 6083, 6106, 6149, 6328, 6403, 6542, 6653, 7125, 7235, 7321, 7374, 7402, 7453, 7461, 7465, 7490, 7507, 10008, 10010, 10016-10017, 10027-10029, 10031-10032, 10040, 10044, 10053, 10061). In some of these volumes there is a list of names of rabbis working in the territory of the gubernia in 1910 (vol. 7313) and rules for the selection of a rabbi in the Kingdom of Poland (vol. 4612).

The form and content of the above records were dictated by regulations. The records are primarily correspondence between a religious community and various state administrative structures. Among the archivalia are general communications from the supervisory committees of synagogues about the need to hire a rabbi together with justification, or communications from those interested in the position with the necessary accompanying documents. Among these are certificates of nonpunishability and loyalty, biography of the candidate, certification of professional ability from other rabbis, certification about knowledge of Polish before 1867 and Russian after that date provided by an elementary school teacher. There was a filled-out declaration of work for a specified remuneration and a protocol of selection of the candidate by his fellow Jews. The file was completed by a resolution by the civil governor naming the rabbi and a report on the solemn initiation of the candidate to the synagogue. There are also documents connected with a change in place of work, as well as breaks in work caused by sickness or removal to a sanatorium. In some volumes, these documents have not survived in their entirety.

The next group of records relate to candidates for rabbi (vol.: 5023, 5030, 5043, 5208, 5211, 5237, 5370-5371, 5378-5379, 5382-5384, 5388, 5435, 5438-5439, 5442, 5445, 5447-5449, 5466, 5656, 5811, 5814, 5816, 5827-5828, 5830-5831, 5892-5893, 6069, 6226, 7396).

To be sure, in some cases the candidates named in the records did not take up work on the territory of the gubernia, but depending on the type of work I name them in that place. The genesis of the records was connected with the existence in the office of the civil governor of an examination commission for candidates residing not only in Radom Gubernia but also in neighboring gubernias. Among the archivalia is correspondence from those who were interested in taking the examinations, certifications from the administration of the candidate's place of residence about his political and moral standing and examination work in Russian (some candidates wrote autobiographies in this form), and protocols from the examination commission evaluating the language knowledge of the candidate and his basic knowledge of administrative law. These were requirements for taking up the position as rabbi. When the candidate passed the examination he had a certificate of qualification for the office of rabbi, accompanied by a photograph, giving him the right to engage in that profession throughout the Empire. There are copies of these certificates in the records. [For more information, see Kielce-Radom SIG Journal, V:1(Winter 2001), pages 16-23].

Archivalia relating to the localities named below, in which there were synagogue supervisory committees, tell us also about the members of the committees, and about matters connected with their selection and performance.

The next group of records connected with the functioning of the synagogue supervisory committees provides information on the use of community buildings of various types. They also relate to use of buildings by Jews in localities where they resided but where there was no synagogue supervisory committee. These buildings were synagogues, baths [mikvah], kosher butcheries, prayer houses, cheders and cemeteries. The archivalia provide information about the construction, reconstruction, or closure of buildings, about the appropriation of funds for their use; about the opening of permanent prayer houses in private buildings or of temporary ones during Jewish holidays. In the case of construction work, the record is created according to rules on building estimates and architectural drawings.

Records are available for the following localities (numbers are for volumes):

Białobrzegi (4549, 5107 mikvah; 4040 synagogue and mikvah; 10035 prayer house); Bliżyn (9949 prayer house); Ciepeliów (4749 cheder); Ćmielów (6151 prayer house); Dwikozy (5568 prayer house); Firlej, now part of Radom (6137 prayer house); Gielniów (6415 prayer house); Głowaczów (5007 prayer house; 5631 mikvah); Iłża (6281 synagogue; 6360 prayer house); Iwaniska (5340, 6254 mikvah; 5725 prayer house); Jedlińsk (5222 mikvah; 9923 prayer house); Klimontów (4079, 5908, 6343 mikvah; 6330 cheder); Końskie (4280 prayer house, cheder; 4741 synagogue; 4244, 4781, 5177, 5731 mikvah; 5465, 6102, 9945 prayer house; 6427 mikvah, kosher butcher; 6671 cemetery); Koprzywnica (5643 synagogue; 9948, 9951 prayer house; 5928 cheder; 4675 cemetery); Kozienice (5231, 5562 mikvah; 6631 cheder); Lipsko (5571, 5669 synagogue; 5962 mikvah); Magnuszew (5329, 6167 synagogue; 4785 synagogue and mikvah; 5724 mikvah); Odrowąż (9950 prayer house); Opatów (2690, 4561, 4793, 5105, 5726 mikvah; 4725 synagogue; 4446, 4770 cemetery; 5728 mikvah, kosher butcher; 9952 poorhouse); Opoczno (4593 synagogue; 6044 prayer house; 7110 synagogue, prayer house, mikvah; 6602, 9941 cheder; 8187 poorhouse); Osiek (4734 prayer house; 4740, 6578 cheder); Ostrowiec (5502, 5705 mikvah, kosher butcher; 9943 prayer house; 7056 reconstruction of community buildings after a fire); Przedbórz (9944 prayer house; 4299 prayer house, cheder; 9983 mikvah, kosher butcher); Przysucha (6480 synagogue; 5283 mikvah, kosher butcher, cheder; 2260 kosher butcher; 9937 cheder); Przytyk (5721 prayer house); Radom (4405, 4430, 4712 mikvah; 4128, 4555 kosher butcher; 5960 mikvah, kosher butcher; 4715 synagogue; 4141, 5943, 9921, 10056, 10064 prayer house; 4650, 6197 cemetery; 4230 kosher meat butcher); Radoszyce (4743 cemetery); Sandomierz (4376, 4498 prayer house, cheder; 5068 prayer house; 6224 mikvah; 9947 cheder; 9982 cemetery); Skaryszew (4399 prayer house; 5092 mikvah; 6023 synagogue, mikvah); Słupia Nowa (9992 collection of funds for construction of prayer house); Staszów (4254, 5155 mikvah; 5247 cheder; 4719 mikvah, kosher butcher; 6311 prayer house; 5949 synagogue); Szydłowiec (4783, 5998 synagogue; 6007 synagogue, cheder; 7155 mikvah, kosher butcher); Tarłów (5572 mikvah); Zwoleń (4311, 4488, 5613, 5863, 6353 mikvah; 7401 prayer house; 6223 cheder; 5063 poorhouse); Radom Gubernia (2835 cheder construction; 4187 approvals for prayer houses in private residences; 5939 mikvah).

As a result of carrying out the decree on equal rights for the Jews (5 June 1862), the limits on migration were eliminated, thus in many localities, with the settlement of Jews, there could be new synagogue supervisory committees. The documentation collected, after the establishment of a supervisory committee, served to justify the financial bases of new religious organizations in: Głowaczów (vol. 4467, 4592); Gniewoszków (vol. 7090); Gowarczów (vol. 4550); Jedlińsk (vol. 5256); Łągów (vol. 4511); Magnuszew (vol. 7181); Odrzywół (vol. 6686); Osiek (vol. 4748); Solec (vol. 4681); Wącheck (vol. 7130); Wierzbnik, presently Starachowice (vol. 6495).

In some localities, the Jewish populace required the shift from a former supervisory committee to a different one by the easiest means possible. This happened in: Białaczów (vol. 7412); Borkowice (vol. 5757); Kołonic (vol. 7306); Kostrzyń (vol. 7282, 7542); Mniszew (vol. 4608); Słupia Nowa (vol. 4807); Sulisławice (vol. 6437, 6625); Szwagrów (vol. 6687); Widoma Przedborska, now Przedbórz (vol. 4787); Wyśmierzyce (vol. 6031) and Tczów (vol. 4447).

There are records about change of religious faith, both on the move from Judaism to one of the Christian faiths, usually Roman Catholicism, and on the return to Judaism. This happened most often with individuals who had to change in childhood when their parents changed. The relevant group of records includes protocols of investigation, during which the proselyte, in the presence of clergy and representatives of administrative authorities, gave information about the motives for changing religion. There is also correspondence of various levels of the Catholic Church with state authorities (vol.: 4512, 4548, 4999, 5011, 5056, 5184, 5202, 5227, 5232, 5387, 5392, 5425, 5604, 5673, 5696, 6583, 9922-9931, 9933-9936, 9938-9940).

A rather large group of records relates to fines for illegal teaching in private homes, in which cheders were generally organized. After a description of the facts, the amount of fine was also given, usually in monetary terms (vol.: 842-844, 847, 850-852, 854, 856-858, 861-864, 867-868, 871-888, 890-891, 893, 900, 902-904, 906-907, 909, 911-913, 915, 918-920, 923-925, 927-932, 935, 937-941, 943-944, 946, 950, 952, 954-955, 959-963, 968, 970-971, 973-977, 981, 987, 992, 994, 997). One can add to this category complaints against mayors who closed cheders (vol. 5304) or awards given to Jewish teachers for instructing children in Polish, Russian or German (vol. 4364).

A group of records deal with the construction, reconstruction or repair of residences and commercial buildings, or their modernization, in various localities in the gubernia, mostly in Radom. The owners were Jews. In addition to correspondence, there are also building estimates and architectural plans in the following volumes in various areas: 2086, 2379, 2389, 2392-2393, 2405, 2409, 2411, 2415, 2430, 2437, 2536, 2539-2540, 2553-2554, 2558-2559, 2574-2575, 2581, 2587, 2592, 2596-2597, 2599, 2608, 2613, 2660-2661, 2672, 2720, 2722, 2733-2736, 2747, 2751-2752, 2758-2761, 2764-2766, 2774, 2780-2782, 2784, 2884, 2804, 2806, 2822, 3056.

Records tell us about the collection of funds to finance the material needs of poor Jews, among others: fuel for winter (vol. 7362, 7566); funds for Jews living in Palestine (vol. 4183, 4203); as part of charities, medical care for poor Jews (vol. 4819); the burial of destitute victims of cholera in Radom after the epidemic of 1894 (vol. 5752). Also included were records on taxes on ploughing (vol. 4481, 5592). There are records on the finances of the Jewish hospital in Radom (vol. 2830, 6016) and retirement payments to its workers (vol. 7582).

After the outbreak of World War I, the Russian administration removed the facilities of personally owned factories, including those owned by Jews (vol. 7655-7659, 7662-7664, 7668-7675).

Some records tell us of fines for the illegal selling of produce (vol. 993), including vodka (vol. 7634) and of illegal taprooms (vol. 7635-7636); about Jewish doctors (vol. 9469, 9485, 9506), including the female nurses of the Jewish hospital (vol. 9519).

Some volumes relate to the guild of undertakers in Zwoleń (vol. 4547), the appointment of kosher butchers (vol. 4317), the lodging of Hasidic Jews in Radom (vol. 4218); the excommunication of a Jewish baker in Zwoleń (vol. 4236); breaking of state laws during Jewish burials (vol. 10030, 10052); suspicions lodged against the rabbi and members of the synagogue supervisory committee in Staszów that they collected funds to buy Jewish recruits out of the military (vol. 9979); material about various business enterprises in towns (vol. 1271, 2064, 2089, 2105).

Postal Rates

We have suffered a financial blow from the January 2001 increase in U.S. postal rates. While the rate for mailing issues to our U.S. subscribers only went from $1.13 to $1.30, those for our foreign subscribers have soared. For example, it used to cost $1.37 to mail an issue to Canada by surface mail whereas the new rate is $2.70. It is now actually cheaper to send the issues by airmail at $2.35 which is what we have been doing. For our European subscribers, surface rates have gone from $1.87 to $3.80 for most countries. The airmail rate for most European countries has gone from $3.84 to $6.40. We won't even talk about how much it now costs to mail to Australia. For that reason, we have dropped the foreign surface mail rate and increased the rates for new Canadian subscribers, as you can see from page 2. To deal with this problem, we are attempting to qualify as a Publishers' Periodical. If we qualify, and we should, our postage rates will go down considerably and we will be using a better postal class (second class versus fourth class) which should improve delivery of our issues. Eventually, this should allow us to reduce our foreign rates considerably though the cost to apply for this is a one time fee of $350.

Zwoleń Indexes Available

K-R SIG member David Price reports that he has in his possession photocopies of the indexes of Jewish births, marriages and deaths for the 6 LDS microfilms of Zwoleń (Kozienice district, Radom gubernia), covering 1826-1877. Another person had previously paid for the photocopies and David was supposed to transliterate the lists and type them up for the KR-SIG Journal and eventually JRI-Poland. The FHL microfilm numbers are #716,373-376 and #1,201,357-358. There are 310 pages of 11" by 17" in size. David having other genealogical projects to work on, if anyone is willing to transliterate and type up the Zwoleń index lists (1826-1867 are in Polish, 1868-1877 are in Russian), he would snail mail the photocopies to you free of charge. The Last Impressions of My Home Town

by Abe Zukerman

Translated from the Yiddish by Vivian Glass Felsen

from Sefer Wierzbnik-Starachowice [Wierzbnik-Starachowitz; a memorial book]

Edited by Mark Schutzman. (Tel Aviv: Wierzbnik-Starachowitz Societies, 1973), pages 363 ff.

When I decided to leave the tainted land of Poland forever, I was tormented by the thought as to whether I would ever forgive myself, if I did not return to my home town Vierzbnik just to see what it looked like. I knew very well that unfortunately, of my immediate family, relatives and friends, whom I left behind when I was inducted into the Polish army before the war, no one remained alive. I had already given up all hope that any of my dear ones would be found there. Yet instinctively I felt drawn to have a last look at the place where I was born and raised.

Perhaps it was an inner longing or a call from my subconscious, to at least bid farewell to the earth and stones on which we walked for years, day after day, now soaked with innocent blood which would never dry, permeated with the indescribable pain and torment which the Vierzbenik martyrs had suffered before their terrible deaths. Is it not normal for a human being to long for the dry, silent stones, and the wood used to build the house and home to which he was attached his entire life?

This very normal longing at a certain point won over.

Nor did I heed the advice and logical arguments of my landslayt to forget about Vierzbnik, because the town was no longer the same as it was. Besides, they told me, it was simply dangerous to go there. Even after the war was over, Polish fascists had killed the few surviving Jews who, just as a bird comes back to its nest which has been destroyed, found their way home.

Despite this, I could not change my mind to go to Vierzbnik and take one last look.

One evening, while I was in Łódź (where I was living), I went to the train station and bought a ticket. The train was already full when it arrived, and immediately became even more crowded with Polish faces, which frightened me.

From the time I stepped into the railway car, no one spoke. I soon saw that I could not expect a comfortable journey, but not for one minute did

I waver, or let the discomfort stop me from reaching my goal.

I went up the steps with all the non-Jewish passengers and took a standing position. At a sign from the conductor, the train began to move and I became an ordinary passenger. After a short time standing pressed against the car, I became cold because the wind was continuously blowing in my face, and my hands began to feel frozen to the iron handrail. This was only a part of the liberties that nature takes with a passenger who chooses to travel in the last and lowest class of the train. The feeling of discomfort subsided as I thought for a moment about the insignificance of my present discomfort in comparison to how my dear ones were dragged away in railway cars on their final journey . . .

The locomotive huffed and puffed as it raced along, letting out loud noises every few minutes as if to remind me not to fall asleep on my feet. My eyes strained in the deep darkness, broken only by the flying sparks ejected by the locomotive.

After a whole night of traveling, the train neared Starachovitch, the town next to Vierzbnik. The district was very familiar to me and everything looked exactly as before. Nothing had changed, just as though during my entire absence nothing frightening or terrible had happened.

We stopped in Starakhovitch [Starachowice] for a short time, as usual, at the station, and soon the wheels began to move again.

The thought that in about another 5 or 10 minutes I would be in Vierzbnik, caused my whole body to sweat and tremble. My mood became darker, and my doubt greater. I thought of how different was my present arrival in Vierzbnik: I was coming to the graves of my forefathers, or rather, to the graves of my family, although I did not expect to see even a sign of a grave, because the Nazi murderers had also taken care of that. They did everything to wipe out any trace of their horrible murders. The soldiers carried out their barbarism with such thoroughness, that only the devil disguised as a human being could have conceived it.

Two minutes later the train suddenly stopped in an open field. I broke out in a cold sweat from head to toe. What did this mean? We knew that very often Polish fascists would stop trains to drag off Jewish passengers and kill them. What could I do but resign myself to my fate and ask God that if anything were to happen, to give me the courage of Samson.

Every second seemed an eternity. I strained in every direction to hear from my fellow passengers the reason for the abrupt stop.

But my ears were blocked, as if I had lost the ability to hear. I simply could not catch a word.

Suddenly, the eternal waiting was over, and the train began to move. This short interlude left a stamp on my heart and it was a miracle that it did not stop beating. It was as though the train itself was infected with poisonous antisemitism and had just wanted to scare me . . .

Miraculous escape from the Kielce pogrom

We Jews now live as though only with miracles. How else is it that I only escaped the Kielce Pogrom by chance? I was living in the very building where the slaughter took place. A day before the terrible event, I left the city of Kielce with my friend Yehiel-David Speigel from Łagów for no reason and went to Łódź for a couple of days to see if we could find any of our acquaintances.

The journey was not planned in advance. As soon as we had decided to go, we took the first train to Łódź, leaving behind our few "valuables" because we thought that we would be back soon. Thus, completely by chance, we escaped being among the 100 or so who were shot in broad daylight by Polish antisemitic murderers, under the nose of the Stalinist overseers, whose quarters were a five-minute walk from the building where the victims struggled with the murderous attackers for several hours.

There is no doubt, that the mere presence of even one of the so-called saviours, would have stopped the dark plan of the murderers. Therefore, their absence and silence indicates their complicity in this horrible pogrom.

A Peculiar Strangeness

After a few minutes the train stopped and the conductor called out the well-known words

"Vierzbnik Station". Trembling and with longing I descended the steps of the train and I was home! -- Yes, I say "home" because how else can someone refer to the place where he was born and raised, where my whole family lived for as long as I can remember?

Once off the train, I went through the station with the rest of the Polish passengers. For a moment I thought about how different it was now from before the war when I still had a home!

As soon as we would leave the station, we would experience a pleasant atmosphere. Today, it is not there. The sweet feeling disappeared with all the Vierzbnik martyrs and you did not need a special sense to feel this. I felt a peculiar strangeness and very uncomfortable, more than before . . .

Where was I going and to whom would I speak? I go to our home, 13 Rynek. I take the same road, which I always took. I go through the butchers' street to the market. I can feel my heart beating louder and faster. I am shaking. I am afraid to discover the sad reality with my own eyes, that everything is empty and deserted, that no trace remains of Jewish Vierzbnik which once throbbed with colour and life. Although I know well from several witnesses that Vierzbnik is completely without Jews, although I can more or less imagine how our town now looks and have no illusions that I would find any of my dear ones, I have no inkling of what my emotional response will be when I see it with my own eyes.

I reach the market and remain standing at the corner at Yashtal's house near the tavern. Standing here I found myself opposite Shelong's house where my sister Rokhche lived with her husband and their dear children. The Shelong building already had a murderous history, already from before the war. There a Polish anti-Semite, a murderer, came to Yerachmiel Rabinovitch in his shoe shop and shot my friend Moishele Rabinovich, whose young life was cut off by the murderous bullet. When his brother Yaakov Yitzhak chased the anti-Semite, he was also hit by a bullet and suffered for a long time from his wounds. I turn my eyes in the direction of that building and cannot tear them away, as though I am expecting to see someone from my sister's house, or the previous Jewish residents. I do not, however, dare to approach in case one of the new bandit owners were to recognize me.

Drinking from the well of tears

From there I went in the direction of our house. I stopped and looked at my house from the outside, and was afraid to go in, in case the new owners found out who I was. What I could not see with my own eyes, I saw with my memory and imagination, including each nook and cranny. But standing in the market at the doorstep of my own house, a strange thing happened to me. I had been tortured the whole time by the fear that when I would actually confront the naked and terrible truth, I would certainly break down and cry a river a tears. The reality, however, was very different. The fear, that something would happen to me in these emotional moments, which would have certainly been absolutely normal, proved to be false. Now, as I stand face to face with the sad and gruesome reality, now when my understandable shock had reached its height, now as I look at my house and see every detail with my own eyes, it seems as though it wants to speak to me, or perhaps the opposite, that I want to cry out to it. Now, when the reality of my terrible tragedy cannot be greater, when the blister is about to burst, in this painful and anxious moment, I cannot even find the trace of a tear in my eyes.

Before the stark facts I stand petrified and have stopped reacting like a normal person, and as a result, my well of tears has been frozen.

Thus I go around my home town, feeling like I am at a cemetery. My steps are weak and unsure, as if I were trying to avoid stepping on some Jewish grave. Although I have no one to exchange a word with, everything I approach is like a dumb witness, trying to recount all it has seen. Every house, every place reminds me of something. Although I am in a daze, spiritually and physically broken, and above all not able to think about the recent past, some memories sneak into my mind, as I go by all the former Jewish homes.

As I prowl around, I stop for a while at the home of the deceased Chaim Brodbeker, and a shiver goes through my bones. Here, in this house, the Polish anti-Semites, the former Hitler helpers and now the loyal heirs of the Nazis slaughtered those few Vierzbnik Jews who had miraculously saved themselves. The war was already over, but Jewish lives were still worthless and the spilling of Jewish blood disturbed no one.

It did not help that the few exhausted and weak Jewish survivors tried to conceal their hiding place. The murderous scoundrels burst into their quarters and with axes and weapons attacked the helpless martyrs. Many times they eluded death, but now the "miracle" (of survival) no longer worked and they almost all died a terrible death. Here their sad lives came to an end. This time they no longer succeeded in escaping the claws of the angel of death.

Not wanting to spend the night in Vierzbnik, I began to make my way back to the train station, to take the train to Ostrovstse [Ostrowiec] where I thought my life would be in less danger. Once in the station, I thought about everything I had seen in Vierzbnik and this time I truly understood the meaning of the saying "Seeing is believing".

The noise of the fast approaching train interrupted my thoughts. This time I was luckier. The cars were not as full and I boarded the train easily. Once inside, I sat down by the window to get a last look at my home town Vierzbnik, which I was leaving forever.

Without moving my lips, but with my weeping heart, I quietly murmured "Yiskadal, yiskadash" to honour the holy memory of all our near ones and the entire Vierzbnik community.

The train was soon far from the station and past the large rock which is found at the corner of the Mikhalev Forest, the rock which all knew and on which so many Jewish names from Vierzbnik were engraved.

We had already traveled a fair distance but my eyes were still turned in the direction of Vierzbnik. When I could no longer see our town through the train window, the picture of my home town Vierzbnik and my feelings that day were imprinted on my heart and my memory, where they will remain for the rest of my life.

Extract Data in this Issue

Przedbórz	Marriages	1855-1886	Dolores Lee Ring
Radom	Births	1842-1844	Florence Weingram

The vital record extracts for this issue are 1855-1886 marriages for Przedbórz, prepared by Dolores Lee Ring; and the 1842-1844 Radom births, prepared by Florence Weingram. This data has been extracted from the civil registration books in possession of the Polish State Archives, and microfilmed by the Church of Jesus Christ Latter-day Saints (LDS). These extractions include information derived directly from the original registrations on the following LDS microfilms:

#0,719,015 Przedbórz 1847-1856
 #0,719,016 Przedbórz 1857-1865
 #1,192,427 Przedbórz 1866
 #1,192,428 Przedbórz 1867-1871
 #1,713,984 Przedbórz 1872
 #1,713,985 Przedbórz 1873-1882
 #1,713,986 Przedbórz 1882-1886
 #0,716,127 Radom 1842-1844

There are additional microfilmed records available for both towns.

Przedbórz

This issue contains a very large set of extracts of Jewish marriages recorded in Przedbórz, from 1855 to 1886, once again thanks to Dolores Lee Ring. The earlier Przedbórz Jewish marriages, 1810-1846, appeared in III:2 (Spring 1999), pages 31-49; and 1847-1854 in IV:2 (Spring 2000), pages 63-71. This set completes all of the Przedbórz Jewish marriages microfilmed by the LDS.

Przedbórz had a large Jewish community (1897 Jewish population: 4,089). Before WWI, Przedbórz was located in Końskie powiat (district) of Radom gubernia, near the border with Piotrków gubernia.

As with all marriage extracts, these will be of interest to researchers from many towns, because the majority of the marriages include a bride or groom from another town in the region. Marriage partners from Końskie, Radoszyce, Włoszczowa, Gowarczów, Opoczno, Żarnów, and other Radom and Kielce gubernia towns appear frequently. Przedbórz was on the border with Piotrków gubernia, so there are also partners from many Piotrków gubernia towns, such as Radomsko (Nowo-Radomsk), Sulejów, and Piotrków.

Several abbreviations are used in the Przedbórz marriage extracts. A blank space or hyphen indicates that information is missing in the original document. A question mark denotes illegible information. A "P" in the "Place Born/Living" column indicates Przedbórz; "wieś" means village; "(w)" is widow(er); "(mn)" is maiden name of the bride, if it is not her first marriage; "(d)" is deceased. Items in square brackets are the extractor's conjectures, based upon other records; they do not appear in the original documents.

Radom

We're please to welcome a new contributor, Florence Weingram, who presents extracts of the 1842-1844 Jewish births for the city of Radom. Extracts of earlier Radom births, 1810-1825, appeared in Kielce-Radom SIG Journal III:1 (Winter 1999), pages 15-20; with the 1827-1841 births and marriages in I:3 (Summer 1997), pages 39-49.

The Radom Jewish civil registers for this period apparently also include registrations from the nearby towns of Skaryszew and Jedlińsk, as well as many small surrounding villages and settlements.

Also note the footnotes on the last page, describing a few anomalies in some individual registrations.

Caution

These extracts are intended to assist the researcher in selecting records that may be of use for further study. There may be errors in interpretation in these extracts, due to the uneven quality of legibility of the handwriting, the microfilming, and the condition of the microfilm itself, in addition to errors in the original record books. As always, it is prudent for the researcher, when using secondary source data such as these extracts, to examine the primary source data for final verification. It is always best for the genealogist to view the actual records pertaining to his/her family to verify the interpretation, and glean additional facts.

Footnotes:

*1 Given name Haja as written in the text is inconsistent with his identification as a male child, his other name Mort/dka and name appearing as Haim in index with identification as a male child, his other name Mort/dka, and name given as Haim in index.

*2 Zeynwel was cited as the child's surname in both the Akt margin and index, yet his father's surname was Goldszligier. The text indicates that the child received the given name Abraham Zeynwel. Zeynwel was often used as a given name. Its use as the surname here may have been a clerical error.

*3 It is not clear that child's surname Rosenberg as presented in the Akt margin and the index is correct. In the text, the child's surname, his father's surname, and his mother's married name were presented as Ayzenberg. See Akt 9 - Eyzenberg for a possible link..

*4 Akts 64 & 72 above appear to be repetitions of the same birth record, except for additional name information in the later record and different residence locations, birthdates and ages of father.

*5 In the margin and index, the child's name appears as Haja Sura Szerman Mendlowiiczowa. In the text, the declarant's surname, mother's married name and child's surname are Szerman. See Szerman, Akt 72 - 1842 above, for a possible explanation.

*6 Child's surname and mother's married name "Waycman" differ from declarant's surname "Szlosman". See this Akt margin for a possible explanation.

*7 Residence is młyn Wytowski in margin and młyn Janiszewski in text.

*8 Declarant's given name is Szmul in text; his Latin alphabet signature accompaniment given name is Wulf.

*9 Given name is Szyia in index
